

RIVERS READY TO DROP SPECIAL SESSION AFTER CONFERENCE WITH HARRIS, SPIVEY

European Tension Increased By German Troop Movement

BRITAIN, POLAND AND ITALY SHOW NO UNEASINESS

Fear No Sudden Eruption Over Danzig Despite Arrival of Many Nazi Forces on Polish Front.

By The Associated Press.
Great Britain, Italy and Poland evidenced no great uneasiness yesterday over any immediate eruption of the Danzig dispute, but Germany kept central Europe tense with an unconcealed attention to military business.

While Fuehrer Adolf Hitler was receiving felicitations in Berlin on the 25th anniversary of his enlistment as an Austrian volunteer in the German World War army, Nazi troops in "large numbers" were arriving in Gleiwitz, German town on Poland's southwestern border.

Unusual numbers of messenger motorcycles, automobiles and military trucks rumbled along the streets.

Troops With Tools Seen.
Construction of troop emplacements near the border were reported and helmeted soldiers with entrenching tools rode through the city in mud-caked trucks.

Troops could not be identified because shoulder regiment numbers were concealed by cloth tabs sewed over them.

(Gleiwitz is near Beuthen, where a 70-mile strip of border was closed today. Germans, however, said it was closed by the Poles.)

An Associated Press correspondent traveling along the Polish border between Schneidemuehl, Germany, and Schlochau, (along the Polish Corridor) noted unusual military activity.

String Communication Lines.
The military was stringing miles of communication lines and besides using regular army vehicles for transport purposes had commandeered private vehicles which were stenciled with army symbols. But no troop movements were seen in the northern sector.

Similar activity was to be seen in Berlin and other German cities. Meanwhile, Hitler conferred with his air chief, his foreign minister and the head of his press department.

With Italian newspapers urging Poland to seek a conference with Germany on Danzig, Nazi spokesmen said plainly no conference would be possible unless it was for discussion of a method of un-

Even Burglar Has Code Of Honesty—Here It Is:

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 16.—When H. A. Holdrege, of Omaha, went on his vacation he hired a watchman to guard his home.
Today police arrested the man on charges of looting the home next to Holdrege's.
Detective Sergeant Val S. Buglewicz said when he asked the prisoner why he had not looted the Holdrege home the reply was "that wouldn't be honest."

Congressman Called 'Liar' by Fritz Kuhn

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(P)—has received $18,000 in voluntary contributions, and that monthly dues receipts run to about $2,000. He left the latter amount inexact because the books were in the hands of New York's district attorney.

That he had an interview with Hitler in 1936 and contributed something less than $3,000 to the German "winter-relief" fund.

These bits of information were spread through four hours of questioning by Rhea Whitley, committee counsel. Spectators came and went, but those who stayed were finally rewarded for their patience.

Late in the day, Starnes took up the examination.
Cocking an accusing finger at Kuhn, he said:
"What connection have you with the German government?"

"Absolutely no connection whatsoever," Kuhn retorted.

"Isn't Mr. Hitler against the Communists?" Kuhn countered.

"Isn't Mr. Hitler anti-Semitic?" "Aren't you ———?"

Starnes' face was flushed, his fists clenched. Kuhn was spitting.

That since early 1938, the Bund

SIX STATES ORDER OIL WELLS SHUT

Texas Lead To Halt Flow
Followed by Others in Move To Raise Prices.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 16.—(P)—Five states lined up behind Texas tonight in a parade against collapsing oil price schedules by joining an unprecedented "shutdown strike" to halt the flow of wells which produce more than two-thirds of the nation's oil.

Workmen closed the valves on 56,000 Oklahoma wells this morning and before the day had ended, New Mexico, Kansas, Arkansas and Louisiana had followed the pattern set by Texas.

Kansas fell in line about mid-day, shutting down until further notice. Late in the day Arkansas announced all controlled fields would close at 7 a. m., tomorrow until further notice and Governor Earl K. Long, of Louisiana, reported his state would issue a two-weeks' shut down order, effective at 6 p. m., tomorrow.

In New Mexico, a proclamation closing the state's 2,265 wells, signed by Governor John E. Miles, will be placed in effect by A. A. Andreas, state geologist, upon his return from Oklahoma City.

Texas, which produces nearly 40 per cent of the nation's crude, closed its 87,000 wells yesterday, taking the lead in the offensive by mid-continent producers against a wave of price slashes.

The shutdowns in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico were ordered for 15 days but Governor Leon C. Phillips, of Oklahoma, said he was not certain this would be sufficient to end the price crisis.

"I'll not hesitate to call another meeting if I don't think this solves it," he commented.

Officials hoped the shutdowns

JURY TO TAKE UP HAILEY'S FIGHT ON COMMITTEE RULE

Foreman Law Says Plan Will Be Studied to See If It Would Help Equalize Officials' Responsibility

The Fulton county grand jury tomorrow will study the resolution of Commissioner Gloor Hailey to abolish all standing committees of the county commission, "equalize" responsibility and "increase efficiency" in the county government.

Thomas C. Law, foreman, indicated yesterday.

By a vote of three to two the commission Tuesday rejected the Hailey proposal, contending that it would not accomplish the intention of the author and that it would be "unworkable."

Law yesterday said the matter will be taken up by the grand jury and discussed in an effort to determine whether or not its approval would assist in placing responsibility and simplifying governmental procedure.

Hailey's Explanations.
In presenting the resolution, Hailey said it would give all commissioners equal responsibility and would abolish the present system of conducting the five major branches of county government through committee chairmen instead of through the entire board.

Commissioner Troy G. Chastain attacked the measure as "unworkable and ridiculous."

While the entire grand jury yesterday planned to study the Hailey resolution, members of the grand jury subcommittee investigating charges of poor engineering, excessive costs and the overbearing attitude of officials in the conduct of the county's lateral sewer program, held an all-day session.

Headed by Edward McGonigal, the committee, heard from Mitchell C. Bishop, in charge of county sewers.

Witnesses in Lurch.
At about 5 o'clock four city and county officials were in the witness room awaiting to be called, but a tired committee forgot they were waiting, adjourned and left the group cooling its heels.

In the witness room were William A. Hansell, assistant city chief of construction in charge of sewers; Earl Yantis, assistant county superintendent of public works; Harold Sheats, assistant county attorney; and Walter Sennell, deputy sheriff serving the subcommittee.

Get Tip-Off.
Tilden Brooks, calendar clerk in Solicitor General John A. Boykin's office, passed the witness room door, saw the waiting witnesses, decided something was wrong and asked why they were waiting.

Told they were witnesses, he informed them the committee had adjourned.

McGonigal said there was nothing for publication from the meeting yesterday, but that committee sessions will be resumed at 9 o'clock this morning at which time the "forgotten" witnesses will be recalled.

Only meager descriptions of the men were obtained, and Brown failed to identify them after a check of rogues' gallery pictures shown him by city detectives. Investigators of the Federal Bureau of Investigation also were called in on the case.

The car in which the robbers escaped was described as a blue, 1937 Ford coupe with an Illinois license plate.

To meet or not to meet—that was the burning question as Governor Rivers sat down yesterday to talk extra session with Senate President John B. Spivey, left, and Speaker Roy V. Harris, of the house of representatives, right. The Governor is shown emphasizing to Harris some conclusions he has arrived at since he issued an announcement 10 days ago that he planned to call an extra session early in September. At the end of yesterday's conference it generally was agreed that the session has been called off.

U. S. RETAIL TRADE INCREASES BILLION

40 Per Cent Auto Boost
Plays Major Part; Gains
Expected To Continue.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(P)—The Commerce Department reported today that a 40 per cent increase in automobile sales played a major part in rolling up a billion-dollar gain in the nation's retail trade during the first six months of this year.

Agriculture Department economists said at the same time that "some additional betterment during the next few months is indicated by conditions in the more important industries, but no business boom of large proportions is in sight."

Domestic conditions generally indicated, these economists reported, "continued strength in the business situation during the next few months, with industrial production and consumers' incomes likely to pass their 1938 peaks by fall."

Arms Race Helps.
The economists' views were incorporated in a survey issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. It said that, while normally the speeding up of Europe's armament race might be expected to quicken the pulse of American business, "continued governmental controls interfering with the normal flow of commodities" had lessened the force of this stimulus.

Preliminary estimates made public by the Commerce Department showed the total of all types of retail sales had reached $17,900,000,000 in the first half of 1939, an increase of 6 per cent over the like period last year.

Retail Prices Lower.
The report explained that the gain in actual physical turnover of goods had been even more impressive than indicated by the billion-dollar upswing. This, it was stated, was due to the fact that there had been a general reduction in retail prices below the average level of the corresponding six months a year ago.

Prices of general merchandise were about 2.5 per cent under last year's levels, while retail food costs dropped about 3.5 per cent.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 16.—(P)—Sheriff David J. Manning, of Hampshire county, wondered today if Uncle Sam had overdrawn his checking account after a United States Treasury check for $61.20 "bounced" back marked "insufficient funds."

The check was in payment for the keep of four federal prisoners in the county jail. Manning said he would refer the matter to the United States marshal's office at Boston.

CHANCE OF SOLONS DOING ANYTHING IS HELD AS REMOTE

Check Reveals Legislators in Disagreement on Any Solution to Problems,
Says Governor.

By L. A. FARRELL.

Governor Rivers has all but abandoned his announced plan to call the general assembly into special session early next month, it was learned authoritatively yesterday.

The decision that a session is inadvisable was reached following a conference between the chief executive and Senate President John B. Spivey and Speaker of the House Roy V. Harris yesterday afternoon at the Ansley hotel, a decision in which it is understood that Spivey concurred wholeheartedly while Harris was understood to agree that "there is little chance of accomplishing anything."

Governor Rivers is understood to have arrived at the conclusion that no solution to the state's fiscal problems can be worked out at this time before going into the conference with Spivey and Harris and that his reaction to announcement of 10 days ago that the call was to be prepared was supported by both the president of the senate and the speaker of the house, both of whom are looked upon as staunch Rivers men.

Delay Announcement.
Formal announcement of abandonment of the session plans will not be made for several days. In fact it may never be made.

The Governor may just let the situation rock along, hoping that in the months to come the legislature may, on its own initiative work out some solution to its problems. There were reports last night that Governor Rivers has some non-legislative action in mind which may ease the school and old-age pension situation but these reports were lacking in confirmation.

Even the Governor's most intimate associates said they did not know what he had in mind.

Governor Rivers' determination not to call the extra session is said to have been made after he had read various published reports from newspapers over the state revealing a widespread conflict in the minds of representatives and senators on what could and should be done if a session is called.

He is known to feel that at this time a session would only bring about a continuance of the strife which marked the closing days of the 1939 regular session and that too few members of the house have changed their views on tax re-

EIGHTY-ONE DAYS WITHOUT AUTO DEATHS

The southern tier of counties viewed swelling tides with growing apprehension.

Selma reported many farm families marooned near by, and there were scattered other spots of danger.

Boats were called into rescue duty in both the Selma and Prattville areas, as Red Cross began the task of housing and feeding the homeless.

Torrential rains, which trailed a tropical storm across the state last week end, continued today over practically all Alabama, and "flood stages" were predicted for major streams downstate.

There was no reported loss of life, but communication lines, highways and crops were severely damaged. A washout near Tryo, in Bibb county, stopped traffic on the Mobile & Ohio railway's Artesia-Montgomery run.

Overflows, washouts and land slides caused closing of many roads, and the approach span to Tyler Goodwyn bridge across the Alabama river sagged four feet as waters undermined pilings. Power dams aided in controlling the Coosa and Tallapoosa.

McLESKEY CLAN TO HOLD REUNION

Large Attendance Expected
on September 3.

Annual reunion of the McCleskey family will be held September 3 at the home of Miss Emma McCleskey, one mile east of Noonday church on the Shallow Ford road, it was announced yesterday. A basket dinner will be served and a large attendance is expected. All descendants of the McCleskey's, their friends and relatives are invited.

The family was founded by James McCleskey, a Revolutionary War soldier, who was born in 1751 in Pennsylvania and later settled in Abbeville, S. C. One son, David Henderson McCleskey, moved to Banks county, Georgia, and another, Thaddeus Henderson McCleskey, moved to Cobb county, near Marietta.

The first reunion was held in 1907 and during recent years has been held annually.

New State WPA Pay Scale

Boost From Average of $37.50 to $45 Per Month Expected for 40,000 Georgians on Relief.

Raises in pay averaging 20 per cent are due approximately 40,000 Georgia WPA workers after September 1, statisticians of the state office of the Works Progress Administration tentatively calculated yesterday.

Increases, authorized by Commissioner F. C. Harrington in Washington, are expected to raise Georgia's average WPA check from $37.50 to about $45 a month. Advances range from $3.90 to more than $7 a month, according to classification.

Await Load Quota.
State office officials said Colonel Harrington had not yet set the state relief load quota for September 1, when the raise goes into effect, and therefore no estimate of the total increase could be made.

August quota for all federal projects is 46,230, of which 43,415 are on WPA rolls.

The wage increase order was issued in compliance with the new relief act which provides, pay in different sections of the country shall vary no more than does the cost of living. National average wage has been $55.50 per month.

Under existing Georgia wage divisions, there are 32,511 unskilled WPA workers, 5,846 listed as intermediates, 4,491 as skilled and 567 as technical or professional workers. Under the new regulations, unskilled workers will be divided into two wage groups, "A" and "B."

Present Scales.
Georgia is divided by the WPA into five population divisions, ranging from rural areas with less than 5,000 residents to urban centers of more than 100,000.

Largest number of workers, 14,465, are in rural sections according to state office figures. Of that number, 10,803 are unskilled and are paid $27.30 a month; 2,208 are intermediates and receive $33.80; 1,291 are skilled and are paid $44.20 and 163 are technical and professional workers who draw $48.10 a month.

Monthly pay rates range upward through the other population groups and reach their maximum in divisions with more than 100,000 population. In that group, 9,664 unskilled workers receive $40.30 a month, 1,318 intermediates $57.50; 1,754 skilled workers, $72.80, and 238 professional and technical workers are paid $79.30.

TRUST CHARGES HIT
DIXIE PULP MILLS
N. Y. Federal Grand Jury indicts 35 Companies Under Sherman Act.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A number of the south's new pulp mills are involved in indictments returned by a New York federal grand jury charging violations of the Sherman anti-trust act.

On one charge, the jury named the Kraft Paper Association, 35 corporations and 14 individuals. On another, it named the National Container Association, 12 regional container associations, 27 corporations, and 28 individuals. The indictments were returned Tuesday.

Said by many to be the south's fastest-growing industry, pulp manufacturing has sprung up all along the southern Atlantic and gulf coasts. Rival communities have engaged in spirited competitions for the big new mills.

The indicted associations' member corporations with southern connections included Albemarle Paper Manufacturing Company, Calcasieu Sulphate Paper Company, Carolina Fiber Company, Chesapeake-Camp Corporation, Cresset Paper Mills, Gaylord Container Corporation, Gulf States Paper Corporation, Hummel-Ross Fiber Corporation, Southern Kraft Corporation, Union Bag and Paper Corporation, West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, Inc., Container Corporation of America, and National Container Corporation.

In addition, two of the 12 regional container associations—the Piedmont and the Southeastern—operate offices at Atlanta.

ATLANTA MANAGER ON WAY TO RICHMOND.
Both the Piedmont and Southeastern Container Associations are represented in Atlanta and the region from Virginia south and the Mississippi east by Benedict Perrier, management engineer with offices in the Commercial Exchange building. Mr. Perrier is en route to Richmond last night and could not be reached for comment. No other Atlanta official of pulp, paper or container organizations would discuss the developments for publication.

Given Award—Better Late Than Never

Miss Helen Tucker, assistant city personnel director, was awarded a gold key yesterday for work she did as a student at the University of Georgia Evening College in 1938. The key had been in the school's office while Miss Tucker was unaware of its existence. Yesterday, accident brought them together.

City Employee Presented Honor Key
By College Year After Winning It

Miss Helen Tucker Led University of Georgia Evening School Graduating Class in 1938 But Didn't Learn About Award Until Yesterday.

Some people spend their lives in a vain search for honors; others have honors thrust upon them, and accept them as their due. And then there are some, like those convinced that virtue is its own reward, who win honors, but are content to be without tangible evidences of glory.

In the last class is Miss Helen Tucker, assistant city personnel director.

She was graduated from Girls' High cum laude, was president of the student body, and editor of the Girls' High Times. Honors enough.

In 1938 it was honors again. That was the year she was graduated from the University of Georgia Evening College. Her marks put her at the top of the class.

She received her diploma, and many congratulations on her high scholastic standing, and quietly went about the serious business of making a living.

But honors wouldn't let her alone. Yesterday she was back at the college checking the record of an applicant for a city job.

Faculty members were glad to see her. There had been a gold key in the office ever since Miss Tucker graduated. She had won it during her last year, but never had called for it. Yesterday she couldn't avoid it, and another honor was formally bestowed upon her.

Uniforms Delayed But Badges, Clippers Prepare Them To Cope With All Lawbreakers.

Fifty-two freshmen members of the Georgia Highway Patrol went to work yesterday, without their uniforms, but armed with clippers and badges.

The uniforms, Safety Commissioner Lon Sullivan said, were a little late in arriving, but are expected in a few days.

Clippers were also distributed to the 115 veterans of the state police force. They are to be used to punch drivers' licenses after arrest, and so keep track of the number of licensee's offenses.

Two clips in a year for the same offense automatically suspend the license for 30 days; three clips equal a 90-day suspension, while four clips void the license entirely.

The addition to the force was provided for during the last session of the general assembly. Completing an intensive six weeks training course last Friday, the men were divided among the 10 headquarters of the patrol. Each new trooper, according to Sullivan, has been assigned to work with an experienced officer.

Just Check 'True' or 'False' and You May Share $50 Cash, Rialto Tickets

'Coast Guard' Quiz Is Easy, Amusing and Educational; Celebrates Anniversary of Service and Thrilling New Film Epic; Try Today's Questions.

Just answer quiz questions correctly and you may share in $50 cash and Rialto theater tickets.

How many times have you been asked a question you couldn't answer, but if given a hint, you could get it right every time? The Atlanta Constitution and the Rialto theater, in connection with the coast guard's 150th anniversary, are providing you with the answers. All you have to do in this unusual contest is check "true" the answer you believe is correct; if you think it is incorrect, check "false."

The questions correctly answered will count 60 per cent. When you have the answers checked, write a brief essay stating why President Roosevelt is right in refusing to consolidate the coast guard with the navy. This essay will count 40 per cent. Your answers may not all be correct, but if you score 40 per cent on your essay, you may be the winner. The judges' decision, which will be final, will be announced. First prize will be $20 in cash, with $15 second prize; $7.50 third prize, and fourth and fifth prizes of $5 and $2.50, respectively. In addition to the cash prizes, there will be 25 pairs of passes for the next 25 to see "Coast Guard," featuring Randolph Scott, Frances

Dee and Ralph Bellamy at the Rialto theater.

Save your answers and your essay and send them all in the same envelope to the Coast Guard Contest Editor in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

All entries must be postmarked not later than 10:30 a. m. Sunday, August 20.

Back copies of The Constitution may be secured at The Atlanta Constitution office.

Two-Story Building May Be Sought for City.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 16.—Congressman Paul Brown has assured

Athens of a two-story new post office building to cost approximately $415,000. A lot has been bought for it in the downtown section. Original plans have been enlarged to include federal court facilities.

Congressman Brown states postal authorities in Washington and the Treasury Department will sanction an increase in the Athens post office allotment to $415,000. He reports a one-story building can be erected at once, or if Athens wants a two-story building, with a new and larger federal courtroom, it will be available next spring.

RIVERS PROCLAIMS 2 AVIATION WEEKS

State To Mark Progress September 11 to 24.

A proclamation setting the two weeks of September 11 to 24 for the observance of Air Progress in Georgia was issued yesterday by Governor Rivers.

The United States government and several states and communities have likewise proclaimed the air progress observance and in his proclamation Governor Rivers urged "that all the people of Georgia, especially those having interest in aviation, be called upon to join with the people of other states in this observance, sponsoring and participating in whatever exercises or other activities might be deemed appropriate to such an observance."

The man at the next desk says his plans for a spring vacation have been nipped in the bud.

Stamps Mark 25 Years of Panama Canal

Tuesday was a memorable anniversary in the history of the Western Hemisphere—the 25th year of the opening of the Panama canal to the commerce of the world. The event is being celebrated by the issuance of two stamps depicting
"before" and "after" scenes.

This reproduction of the engraver's model for the 12-cent
Panama canal anniversary stamp shows the canal in use after the difficult engineering and hard labor symbolized on the 11-cent issue. From this was made the finely etched plates for printing the stamps.

PWA TO DROP 750 ADMINISTRATIVE WORKERS IN SOUTH

Carmody Orders Personnel Slashed 50 Per Cent; Supervisors Furloughed as Jobs Are Finished.

Approximately 750 PWA administrative workers in nine southern states will be affected by the staff reduction order issued yesterday by John M. Carmody, Federal Works Administrator, officials of the PWA regional office announced yesterday.

Officials said 350 persons were employed in area headquarters in Atlanta, and approximately 400 others in the field.

Carmody announced PWA's personnel would be cut in half, bringing the pay roll from 10,417 to about 5,200.

Regional officials explained field inspectors and supervisors were being furloughed as quickly as their projects were completed and estimated many dismissals would be covered in this manner. Approximately 700 projects are in progress now, compared to 1,100 last February.

The southeastern area includes Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

ROBERTS EXPECTS BETTER SEED PRICE

State Farm Commissioner Confident of Results in Dixie Group's Action.

Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts returned to Atlanta yesterday confident that action taken by the southern commissioners of agriculture in New Orleans this week will result in better prices for cotton seed and pecans this fall.

Roberts said he approved the action of the commissioners in requesting congress pass measures that will protect the Georgia pecan growers from the influx of imported nuts of inferior quality.

The commissioners requested the War Department announce its intention of buying 350,000 bales of second cut linters to be stored for the national defense as a means of increasing the price now obtainable for cotton seed.

ATLANTA WATER REVENUE BOOSTED

Receipts Increase $22,905.67 Over 1938 Period.

Receipts of the Atlanta water department for the first seven months of 1939 exceeded those for the same period of 1938 by $22,905.67, according to figures supplied yesterday to city council's water committee by W. Zode Smith, general manager.

Total receipts for the term ending July 31 were $1,470,507.69.

Customers paid $1,432,614.44 for the water they consumed through July of this year as against $1,417,598.26 for last year, showing 1939 receipts from this source to have been boosted $15,016.18. Tapping charges increased $8,512.15 for this year, and miscellaneous receipts were cut $622.66.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT FACE PIMPLES

These disfiguring spots affecting the outer or surface layer of the skin often result from a temporary disturbance, or merely from incorrect cleansing.

You can relieve the itchy, burning soreness and help your skin by using an ointment whose medication stays in active contact with the pimply spots. Apply it every night and leave it on all night. It does a world of good.

For nearly 45 years people have used Resinol Ointment to fill this need.

It soothes the irritated oil ducts where many surface pimples start, and aids healing. Carefully cleansing the skin with Resinol Soap helps to quicken the pleasing results. Its gently active lather is refreshing and it rinses easily.

Buy a jar of Resinol Ointment and cake of Resinol Soap from any druggist. For free sample, write Resinol, Dent. 89, Baltimore, Md.

BARBECUE PLANNED TO REBUILD CHURCH

South Bend Methodists Set First Fete Saturday To Replace Fire Loss.

Proceeds of barbecue tickets will replace insurance in the reconstruction of the South Bend Methodist church, it was announced yesterday, and just to prove the congregation means business, the first one was scheduled for Saturday.

Beginning at noon, barbecue will be served throughout the afternoon and "until the appetites of all comers have been satiated," according to J. Milton Nelms, Fulton county deputy sheriff who is preparing the event.

The church, of which Rev. Fred Gwin is pastor, was burned to the ground last Easter. Reconstruction already is underway. All friends of the church were invited to buy tickets.

MIAMI GIRL KILLER PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Faces Murder Charges in Slaying; Trial Date Set.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A man, many aliases who posed as a screen talent scout pleaded innocent to charges of kidnapping, assault and murder in circuit court today and was ordered to trial September 25.

Various known as Charles Jefferson, Herbert Goddard, Tom Cochran and Tom Ashwell, the 34-year-old prisoner was arraigned before Circuit Judge C. E. Chillingworth as the state moved to exact from him the death penalty—probably on the murder charge. The court designated a former state attorney, Jack W. Salisbury, to defend the bogus theatrical producer from formal indictments for the abduction of two Miami high school girls and the brutal killing of one of them.

The triple indictment, returned yesterday, followed the testimony of Jean Bolton, former youthful Atlanta night club singer, about how she and Frances Dunn, 17, were lured away on promises of theatrical contracts and how Miss Dunn was slain a week ago in palmetto brush near Boca Raton.

The jury also examined a long signed confession obtained last Thursday shortly after Jefferson's arrest.

PACKERS CALLED TO AVERT STRIKE

Secretary Perkins To Talk With Armour Officials on CIO Threat.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP) Seeking to avert a threatened strike in the packing industry, Secretary Perkins arranged today to meet with officials of Armour & Company, of Chicago, on Friday.

The secretary of labor telegraphed an invitation to H. S. Eldred, vice president in charge of operations, after a ranking official of the CIO had informed her a strike would be called Labor Day unless the government intervened to bring about a conference between company and union representatives.

Soon afterward, Armour & Company announced in Chicago that Eldred and a group of associates would come to Washington Friday.

The CIO had not made any proposals with respect to hours, wages or working conditions, leaders said, and would not until the industry agreed to negotiations.

TWO POLICEMEN SUSPENDED; TRIAL TOMORROW NIGHT

Patrolmen Accused of Blackjacking Prisoner, Declare Use of Weapon Was in Line of Duty.

Two city policemen, J. F. Aldredge and L. A. Puckett, indicted by the grand jury Tuesday, were suspended yesterday by Assistant Chief A. J. Holcombe. They immediately agreed to go on trial before the police committee tomorrow night.

Aldredge and Puckett are the first officers to be suspended by the police department under the recently enacted law requiring suspension of indicted policemen and their automatic discharge upon conviction of a crime by the courts.

The grand jury named them in a true bill charging "assault and battery" upon Gordon Kiser Jr., young Atlanta, whom the officers arrested August 6.

Kiser subsequently accused them of striking him with a blackjack and the officers admitted that Puckett hit Kiser with the blackjack but both charged it was in line of duty because they said Kiser kicked them, tore Aldredge's shirt and knocked Puckett's glasses off.

Kiser and a negro named George White, chauffeur for the Kiser family, were arrested near Peachtree and Sixteenth streets, when Kiser was reported holding White pending arrival of officers called by Mr. Kiser Sr. White was fined in recorder's court on a drunkenness charge and Kiser was bound over to the criminal court on a charge of "assault and battery" upon the policemen.

City Attorney Jack Savage prepared the charges against them in accordance with the law enacted at the last session of the legislature, as the result of the city having to pay months of back salary to several policemen suspended during a graft inquiry but who were not convicted. The new law eliminates any compensation for officers suspended after indictment.

SPECIAL SESSION CALL IS DOUBTFUL

vision since the close of the regular session.

Sales Tax Opposed

Only yesterday Representative J. McRae Clements, of Wheeler county, whom the administration had counted on as a supporter of the retail sales tax, announced that he felt the state could be financed without a sales tax while several days ago Representative Ed Clary, of Columbia county, expressed similar views. Clary, likewise, has been expected to support tax revision. In addition several groups of members, who previously had informed the governor that they were ready to vote a sales tax if necessary have now informed him that because of local conditions they cannot support it.

On the other hand the chief exponents of economy have not advanced any plan for curtailment of the state services and no member has even indicated that he would offer a bill to repeal the seven-month school term law and the old-age pension law, which have brought about the need for added state revenue. Also there has been no indication that there would be a concerted effort made to repeal the homestead exemption program which caused nearly $2,000,000 in revenue losses to the counties, which revenue had not been replaced and which the county commissioner say they need badly.

House Members Checked

Since Rivers issued his announcement 10 days ago that he planned to call the session, the Governor has had a large majority of the house checked by his friends and friends of his program. These checks show that a sales tax bill likely would not get more than 20 votes, the number it received during the regular session and that other tax bills would receive an even smaller minority of the 205 house votes.

The Governor's checkers are said to have informed him that the only revenue-producing bill likely to pass the house is the bill to prevent deductions on state income taxes for the amounts paid by taxpayers on federal income levies. This measure, one of the major recommendations of the house economy committee, was passed by the house during the last regular session, but was defeated overwhelmingly in the senate. The Governor's checkers said this bill probably would pass the house again, but the outcome in the senate was doubtful.

Observers pointed out that if a session of any length resulted and the income tax amendment was the only revenue-producing bill passed the yield from the amendment probably would be eaten up by the cost of the session and the state would be no better off in the long run.

Carmichael Takes Stand

While the Governor was conferring with the chiefs of the house and senate, Representative James V. Carmichael, of Cobb county, vice chairman of the house economy committee, asserted the state could operate on a cash and pay-as-you-go plan if the economy committee report is enacted into law.

Meanwhile at his home at Cordele, Representative Jack Forrester, of Crisp county, announced that if a session is held he plans to offer a 20 per cent luxury tax bill to pay the school teachers. Forrester, also an economy advocate, praised the work of the house committee.

Outlines Program

Carmichael, addressing the DeCATUR Rotary Club, offered a four-point plan for the legislature:

1. Reduce appropriations more than $1,000,000 to the point of actual needs.
2. Repeat the stabilization fund law which now levies a "tithe" of 10 per cent on nearly all revenue, for expenditure by executive order.
3. Peg allocated gasoline and motor vehicle taxes at 1938 peaks, with excess diverted to the general fund.
4. Repeat the state income tax exemption now granted on taxes paid to the federal government.

Carmichael praised Speaker Harris for listing the economy report No. 1 business of the house.

School Problem Cited

"Important as is the question of past-due teachers' salaries," he said, "even more important is the question: Can schools stay open this year and will teachers be paid this year?" When we have solved this, then we can set about solving problems of past deficits.

The state now owes its school teachers approximately $4,000,000 in 1938-39 salaries, which were "written off" the books June 30 under statutory restriction against disbursements in excess of actual revenue.

Carmichael listed three alternatives for erasing this deficit.

A. Diversion from allocated funds already on hand.

B. A bond issue to be retired over an extended period.

C. An emergency tax, to expire automatically when the deficit is paid.

Speaker Harris said Carmichael would speak over radio station WSB Monday night "to sell the people of Georgia" on the economy committee's report. The investigators asserted all existing services could be financed by tightening collections and pegging allocations, without addition of new taxes.

'Pole Top Resuscitation' Is Introduced

Method of Giving Life-Saving Treatment to 'Electrocuted' Linemen Taught to Power Men.

"Pole top resuscitation," a novel method of giving artificial respiration to an electrically shocked lineman without bringing him to the ground, thus saving time that may mean the difference between life and death, was demonstrated here yesterday afternoon.

The idea was originated in Pennsylvania, and is being taught to linemen of the Georgia Power Company by Frank Hartman and Ed Rebel, Pittsburgh linemen, and W. T. Hawkins, safety engineer of the Duquesne Light and Power Company.

All South Will Learn

Safety engineers from all over the south are to attend further exhibitions of the new method of life saving here today and tomorrow.

When a lineman is shocked while working atop a high pole, the essential "g" is to administer artificial respiration as quickly as possible. J. E. Stott, safety director for the Georgia Power Company, explained. The shock has set the muscles of the heart working at cross purposes and the nerve center controlling breathing is paralyzed.

5 to 10 Minutes Wasted

The old method was to lower the stricken man to the ground with ropes and then apply the "Shaffer" prone type artificial respiration. This method took anywhere from five to ten minutes and in those minutes the chances of resuscitation were rapidly decreasing.

The new way which saves many precious minutes, is for another lineman to shimmy up the pole to his stricken companion. Reaching him, the rescuer pulls himself between the man's dangling legs. Steadily the rescuer's safety belt is hitched upward until the unconscious lineman is sitting in the lap of the second lineman.

First, the rescuer determines if there is anything in the mouth of the victim. (A wad of chewing tobacco, for instance, can choke a stunned man to death.)

How It Is Done

Then he begins "pole top resuscitation." He pulls the stricken man's safety belt up and places his hands in the middle of the victim's stomach, with his thumbs resting on the ribs. Slowly and firmly, he applies pressure on the stomach and lower ribs, and then releases his grip. From 12 to 15 times a minute he does this, forcing air in and out of the lungs.

Pennsylvania power companies revived 14 out of 16 men who were "electrocuted," and the Duquesne company brought back to life all six of its men who were "struck" by high voltage while working on poles since the method was developed in 1931.

"Pole top resuscitation" (originated by E. W. Osterreich in Pennsylvania) is to be taught all linemen of the Georgia Power Company throughout the state, Stott said.

"Pole top resuscitation" is about to begin. Here, J. M. Carr, of 201 Hurt street, Georgia Power company, is imitating a lineman who has been shocked by electricity while working atop a pole. On the left, he is dangling from his safety belt, apparently unconscious, while Frank Hartman, a Pittsburgh (Pa.) lineman, illustrates how he slides his safety belt between Carr's legs and then draws the stricken man into his lap to give artificial respiration high above the ground, as shown on the right.

FOG FORCES F. D. R. TO STAY IN PORT

Cruiser Has Hard Time Finding Buoy Marking Entrance to Harbor.

ABOARD U. S. S. LANG, SYDNEY, N. S., Aug. 16.—(P)—

Plagued by a heavy fog on his cruise in Canadian waters, President Roosevelt reached this Cape Breton port in mid-afternoon today and ordered the cruiser Tuscaloosa to remain overnight to await better weather.

After arriving at this northeastern gateway to the Dominion, Mr. Roosevelt received in his quarters aboard ship Jack MacLean, acting mayor of Sydney, and other local notables.

With fog whistles sounding at two-minute intervals and huge searchlights attempting to knife the haze, the Tuscaloosa and her escort ship, the destroyer Lang, had bobbed along at reduced speeds and had a difficult time picking up a buoy in the shipway marking the entrance to the harbor.

Crowds lined the Sydney waterfront but soon dispersed in disappointment after learning that the President would not disembark.

NEW REMEDY FOR UGLY HUSBANDS

When your husband (or wife) gets cross, ugly and grouchy; when he finds fault with the coffee, the eggs, the bacon, and the cook, you may well suspect that he has a touch of biliousness or so-called "torpid liver," so prevalent in hot weather. All he may need to set him straight is a little Calotabs, or better still, Calotabs, the improved calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure.

Calotabs give you the combined effects of calomel and salts, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calotabs." Avoid imitations. Family package only in one-cent, true package ten cents, at your dealer's. (Adv.)

The Good Neighbor and Oil

With wars and rumors of war attracting the major attention, there is before us an important controversy which seriously involves this nation and its relations with friendly nations in our own section of the world.

Controversy over the expropriation of the $400,000,000 oil properties of American and British companies by the Mexican government, has presented our State Department with a difficult problem and one which easily might bring on real trouble.

Negotiations between the companies and the Mexican government have collapsed.

Failure hinged on the Mexican government's position that it have a controlling interest in the joint operation of the wells for a period of years and the refusal of the American companies to accept that position.

Seventeen months of negotiations have failed and Sumner Welles, the efficient undersecretary of state, has announced he will hear both sides. Welles is a career man and an expert in Latin American affairs. His position is made the more difficult because the two governments take opposite views. Secretary Hull has said that expropriation without prompt payment is confiscation. The Mexican government, which has an empty treasury, has said it cannot pay and offers a promise to pay in the future.

There is a sentiment in some sections of the United States to wield the big stick. This would be in error as the present philosophy is to build up a good neighbor relationship with our neighbors to the south. A firm hand with Mexico would not bring back the oil wells but assuredly would turn that nation toward the totalitarian states of Europe and make a definite enemy of Mexico. Indeed, it would not stop there. All South American nations would be alienated by such a policy.

Immediately the other side presents itself. To deal leniently will encourage other nations with American investments, to take over the properties and turn the trade and oil to other nations. Such a course also would strain the relationships with Holland and England.

Again, any pressure of a financial nature might cause the Mexican government to collapse and bring about chaos and revolution.

Mexico is engaged now in returning to Mexico several thousands of her citizens who have been in the United States, notably the border and neighboring states. They are being given 25 acres and a government subsidy as the Cardenas government seeks to build up agriculture. This is a constructive move for both countries.

Any deal with Mexico affects not merely that country but all South America. For that reason it is important the problem be considered with all possible care; that tempers be kept and that the good-neighbor policy be not impaired.

Mr. Welles has his hands full. That he is an expert in Latin American affairs is gratifying.

Summer Opera for Atlanta?

Louisville has concluded a successful season of summer opera. The amphitheater was erected in one of the parks and performances all were under the evening skies with stars in the heavens and stars on the stage. Only once did rain interfere with performances.

The season was an artistic and, more important, a financial success. Promoters were happy. They drew crowds from neighboring states, there is a demand for season tickets for next summer's productions and a great enthusiasm has been developed for summer opera.

The same plan has for many years been successful in St. Louis. The project has captured the fancy and the affection of the people. The opera company enjoys the stay in St. Louis and the people give them tremendous support.

There is no reason why such a venture would not be equally successful in Atlanta. The grand opera "season" of one week at the auditorium, which once was a feature of Atlanta's winters, was glorious. But it must be admitted it was not a financial success. Nor was it a complete artistic success in that it never really won the people, which an artistic success should do. It costs too much. The average man, with little or no knowledge of opera, was dismayed by the tremendous social aspect with stiff shirts and silk hats.

Summer opera is opera and it also is the people's opera. It is possible if one so desires, to see "Aida" in one's shirt sleeves, with the linen coat hung over the back of the chair. Gilbert and Sullivan could be offered along with other famous light operas. Dancing and choral groups may be augmented with local talent and that would offer added interest.

It is something for Parks Manager George Simons to be turning over in his head, PWA could build the open air amphitheater in Piedmont park. There ought to be a natural slope all ready. Atlanta would support summer opera.

Cavalcade of Baseball

The Atlanta Baseball Association tonight will present, as its contribution to baseball's centennial, "The Cavalcade of Baseball."

The "Cavalcade" will present, in pageant form, the story of the game from the time, 100 years ago this year, when Young Abner Doubleday laid out a "diamond" at Cooperstown, N. Y., and gave baseball its start in the world. There will be old costumes, high-wheel bikes and other flavors of the long ago.

Baseball has had many changes in rules. The distance between the pitcher's box and home plate has been changed. But otherwise, Doubleday's diamond remains the same. And so does the character of the game.

It is the national game because it has a peculiar appeal to Americans, young and old. It allows us to vent our spleen on the hapless umpire who always seems to favor the rival team. In our hearts we know him to be an honest fellow but we love him as a scapegoat. If things have gone wrong at the office, if troubles impend, we always can obtain relief by yelling "Kill the Umpire."

American sailors, soldiers and religious workers have taken baseball around the world and it is popular in Mexico, Australia and especially popular in Japan. Even Russia is taking to the game.

Abner Doubleday, who gave the game its "diamond," became a rather famous general with the Union forces during the War Between the States. He helped, on the first day at Gettysburg, to set the stage for the repulse of the Confederate forces. He had a distinguished career but people remember him for baseball, not for his generalship.

It is a great game and a distinct part of our life, along with the hot dog, peanuts and soft drinks. It is very proper the Atlanta club should give to its fans this "Cavalcade" in honor of the game's 100th birthday.

Prohibition in India

The city of Bombay, or rather the Bombay Presidency, embracing the city and containing over 18,000,000 people, has gone dry. One day recently, practically the whole population went on a final spree in celebration of the occasion. It was the last legal drinking of alcoholic liquors, most of which natives buy at 4 cents a pint.

Mahatma Gandhi's declaration that India could be made dry in three years and that the sponsoring of the dry law by the Indian National party would prove the ability of India to govern herself, will be given the acid test. Most of the natives are said to be total abstainers. Under such circumstances the problem should be less difficult to solve. Where not already prohibited by edicts of the Prophet, drinking is banned anyway because it is considered immoral, as well as disrespectful to age and to women.

Strangely enough the wets put up a hard fight on sociological grounds, claiming that Indian liquors contain vitamin B. They pointed out, also, that in many an Indian province liquor taxes account for more than 25 per cent of the total revenue. No compensation has been found for this loss save by increasing property taxes. Many protested against the law, not against prohibition, because of the forthcoming tax increases.

To popularize prohibition the authorities have been showing film versions of "Ten Nights in a Barroom." Incidentally the law closed over 8,500 bars and liquor shops, throwing thousands of people out of employment.

The prohibition experiment in India will be watched with interest all over the world. The native dress, it should be noted, lends itself admirably to "bootlegging." Imagine how many flat pints could be concealed successfully under such loose-hanging garments. It is to be hoped the law will not produce an era of racketeering as it did in the United States.

A French visitor believes we work too hard at playing. Still, a man can always come back from his vacation for a rest.

For 20 long years, Danzigers have been free, and, according to little Fuehrer Forster, can stand it another minute.

REFUGEE CAPITAL

(From The New Orleans Times-Picayune.)
Canadian reports disclose one significant result of the unremitting political tension in Europe. The Canadian industrial commission has followed a policy of reticence on the extent of recent foreign investments, but it leaks out that European industrialists, seeking safety and freedom for their enterprises, have chosen sites in Canada for many undertakings.

Numerous Canadian cities are said to be assured of industrial expansion as a result of European exodus. One of the plants under construction at Frankfort, Ontario—is that of the famous Banta shoe industry of Czechoslovakia. In another city French and Czech interests are building a glove factory and a toy plant. A German industrialist who emigrated to Switzerland several years ago is erecting a $2,000,000 sugar refinery, and another group of Europeans is constructing a $2,000,000 rayon plant. Smaller foreign undertakings are reported under way in various provinces.

The emigration of European capital to the United States has been under way for several years now, but not until recently has it become understood that a great portion of it would remain here, either in American bonds, equities or for future investment.

Regardless of war probabilities, capital is making its way out of central Europe about as rapidly as ways can be found for its export. People may steel themselves to withstand the tension, but free enterprise cannot prosper in an atmosphere of continual fear and uncertainty. War or no war, Europe is paying heavily for the threats it has raised against pursuits which thrive only under conditions of peace and safety.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

HANES' RESIGNATION WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The resignation of Undersecretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes has been in the hands of his chief, Henry Morgenthau Jr., since the end of June. So much is true of the rumor of the able Hanes' departure to private life. That the resignation will be acted on, however, is far from sure.

Hanes' plans have unusual interest, for they involve not only his own relationship with Secretary Morgenthau, but also Morgenthau's with the President, and the future strength of what remains of the administration's conservative wing. If Hanes does go, as he certainly very much wants to do, Morgenthau will be left without a shield-bearer in his battles at the White House. Morgenthau is an obstinate, tenacious man, but with no one to support and reassure him, he can hardly be expected to withstand the onslaughts of the New Deal group with its massed economists, presidential lieutenants and confidential White House agents.

No doubt it was a sense of impending loneliness, as well as genuine affection for his subordinate, which caused Morgenthau to plead with Hanes not to make his resignation final. Hanes is still anxious to return to private life at least before the new year. Yet, as Morgenthau is one of the world's greatest wheedlers, and as Hanes has already agreed to make his departure dependent on Morgenthau's pleasure, it is not an impossible bet that Hanes will still be in office to help Morgenthau through the next congressional session.

MASTODON'S TUSKS The story of Hanes' resignation is quite simple. Originally induced to take a SEC commissionership by Joe Kennedy, Hanes was already thinking of leaving Washington when Morgenthau met him, took a fancy to him, and invited him to accept the Treasury undersecretaryship. Hanes was convinced that tax revision was a necessary preliminary to national recovery. He has a sense of public duty as large and genuinely painful as the Spartan boy's fox. He accepted Morgenthau's offer, with the proviso that he would be free to go when tax revision was an accomplished fact.

Thereupon a curious thing happened. Morgenthau is solitary, suspicious and not immediately trusting. He had enjoyed loyalty, but never devotion from his previous subordinates. The President was the only real Morgenthau crony in Washington and, when his crony outlined a point of view, Morgenthau was prepared, in most instances, to agree. Then came Hanes, who offered Morgenthau a real personal devotion as well as loyalty. Hanes, like Morgenthau himself, was a moderate conservative. With Hanes to encourage him, Morgenthau lost his pliability. Instead of yielding to the President as usual, he began to fight for his opinions with surprising vigor.

The result was the long, acrimonious and frequently silly dispute over the tax bill, in which Morgenthau and Hanes, in alliance with the congressional conservatives, Senator Pat Harrison and Representative Robert L. Doughton, finally extracted the President's consent to tax revision. It was like playing dentist to a mastodon, and if Morgenthau had flinched for an instant, the mastodon in question—the President—would have jumped, trumpeting, from the dental chair and driven his tormentors into the next county.

CONSERVATIVE DILEMMA During the tax revision dispute, it may be suspected, Hanes was made to feel how unwelcome were his encouragements to Morgenthau. His private business, which is extensive, required supervision. Accordingly, when the President signed the tax bill, Hanes submitted his letter of resignation, expressing in it both the warmth of his feeling for Morgenthau and his reluctance to remain at the Treasury.

Morgenthau simply refused to accept the resignation, employing all his wheedling arts to change Hanes' mind. First, Hanes was persuaded to stay on until Morgenthau could return from his vacation in Norway; then, just before Morgenthau departed, Hanes gave his word that he would not leave in any case until Morgenthau could spare him. Thus, the time of his ultimate departure will be determined by the outcome of a contest in obstinacy between him and Morgenthau. As Morgenthau can be, when he wants to, the most immovable, un-get-at-able human object in Washington, Hanes may well lose. The chances for his remaining at the Treasury have been increased, since the President has forgotten the tax revision troubles and once more recognized Hanes' usefulness.

Hanes' dilemma, of course, is the dilemma of every conservative in the Roosevelt administration—whether to walk out because the New Deal insists on going its own way, or to stay on to act as a sort of brake. With a pension program probable at the next session, the position of a human brake on the New Deal chariot will not be comfortable. Nevertheless, Hanes must be conscious that Morgenthau and he are pretty nearly the only brakes available.

Favors

Forgot.

You remember the story in the papers, a little while back, of the lady who wrote to her son many thousands of dollars to the owner, when he found the package, and for his honesty received a reward of one nickel?

That sort of happening is not so rare as you might believe.

There was, I remember, a lady who wrote to her son all filled with disgust and disillusioned she just had to get her story off the chest, by telling it to someone.

This woman had found a package of exceedingly valuable documents in the name of the owner was among them, but that owner had changed residence and the house occupied at the time was in another's name, likewise the telephone.

Nevertheless the finder set to work to locate the owner and, after lots of trouble, did so. She telephoned to say she had the lost package and the woman who talked over the phone was tearful, she was so delighted. She had been worried to distraction over her loss and, when the package was found, she was so relieved, she wanted to give a substantial reward for return of the papers, when the blessed telephone call came.

Now the finder in this case was, fortunately, in such financial position she didn't need the reward, herself. She was, in fact, able to perform the service. But she is a devoted member of her church and has a rule to give any unexpected moneys she receives, such as a reward in a case like this, to her church. The delighted owner told over the telephone, how much the recovery meant to her and said she was coming right around to thank the finder in person and give a reward.

So the finder waited and smiled as she thought of the substantial gift coming for her church.

"Mother

Was Busy."

In a short while a young man called. He explained that the papers belonged to his mother, that she had been unavoidably called to a hospital, that he had come for them and his mother would be around a little later to thank her benefactor in person. So the woman finder gave the youth the papers and he returned.

Later that day, after hearing nothing further, she became a trifle worried. So telephoned once more to find if the papers had reached the proper owner. The woman informed her, over the phone, briefly, that they had, and that was all.

There has been no thanks in person, no reward, nothing. The finder hasn't seen or heard from the other woman to this day. Ungrateful, isn't it?

Both Get

Rewards.

It is proverbially correct that honesty is its own reward and few finders of lost articles really desire anything more than proper gratitude from the owners.

But it is likewise true that petuniousness and ingratitude bring rewards, too. To those who practice these despicable traits, rewards of uneasy conscience. Of warped personality. Of narrow and the distaste of those with whom they come in contact.

Rewards in short, of the bitterness and unhappiness that comes to any individual who knows, in his heart, that he has acted in a small and mean way. Even though no one else knows it, he knows and he is a meaner man for the knowing of it.

In the long run, the one whose honesty is his only reward is far, far better off than the one who taints his memories with the recollection of a meanness that he can never forget.

All the world may scoff but it is still true that honest poverty is a happier human state than conscience-haunted affluence.

Read, once again, even though it is not Christmase, Dickens' "Christmas Carol." It carries a lesson good at any time of the year.

Moral for Little Cats.

In Pueblo, Col., a kitten's plaintive "meow-w-w-w" deep within a street drain basin attracted a crowd. They called firemen. Fellow fire fighters lowered Fire Captain Anderson head first into the drain, holding him by his feet. After a little hand exploratory work in the dark drain he collared the kitten. The kitten, dripping wet, shook itself and then another cat, apparently the youngster's mother, hurried up and announced to the contented mother cat that she had grabbed the kitten by the nape of its neck and scampered off with it.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

The Real New York, Aug. 16.—George Meany, the president of the New York State Federation of Labor, misstated the case when he reported to the convention of that body that there had been a reaction against labor in the legislative field throughout the nation. What he should have said was that there had been a reaction against extortion, mob violence, racketeering, an attempt to censor the entire American press in the interests of the New Deal and, later, in favor of Communism, and the establishment of an irresponsible, unaccountable government in the hands of union leaders. That is a far different situation. The protest is directed against both Mr. Meany's own AFL and John Lewis' CIO, but not against men who work or want to work.

On the contrary, unless the legislatures of the states and nation and the various units of government do intervene, the workers themselves will have no protection against vicious oppression at the hands of professional unionists, many of them Communists, who have been dealing with working people in a manner comparable to that of the Chicago racketeers who sold "protection" to businessmen. If the individual refuses to join a union which is going to "protect" him from his boss, he may suffer worse harm, including physical damage, than that which the union was going to protect him from.

The Boss' No longer is the boss permitted to regulate his politics and religious activities, unless, of course, the boss happens to be an enterprise of the Communist party, which enjoys special privileges as an employer. No longer is the boss legally permitted to extort a kick-back from his wages. That is the privilege of the union. If it can be proved or even shown circumstantially that the boss has phoned the workman's wife that her husband will come down of a broken skull or leg as a consequence of joining a union, the boss is pretty sure to be punished.

But if the union threatens similar discipline for refusal to join, it is just one of those regrettable irregularities which are bound to occur and, after all, a matter of no consequence.

The employer may not fire a man for joining a union, but a union can compel the employer to fire him for refusal to join, even though that union be a political organization working for the election of candidates to whom the individual is firmly opposed on patriotic principles. The union can compel the individual to contribute to the campaign funds of a party which the individual regards as dangerous to the country.

For the Farmer A union can establish control stations on the highway and compel the farmer to take on a passenger from the union for the ride to the market, and force him to pay the passenger union wages as a team-blow and break his neck in a ditch or be hauled off his flivver and beaten to death. And if neither of these accidents befall him, he may discover that he can't sell his stuff in the market because the market itself is under the "protection" of the teamsters or some allied union.

Mr. Meany's own AFL at this moment is disturbed by the affairs of one of its members—the theatrical employees—which demands an initiation fee of $1,000 from some of its members as a license to work, and then collects a higher income tax than the legitimate government of the country. And the experiences of theatrical producers are full of incidents in which members of this union had to be accepted on the pay rolls and paid high salaries for doing only the most nominal duties or absolutely none. Otherwise their shows would have been closed.

Mr. Meany should have examined the causes of the reaction, in which he would have learned that unions have attempted to limit and regulate competition in business and to license business firms to operate. He would have learned, too, that this reaction is directed against mobs of rioters, not necessarily strikers, but expert street fighters, who move into situations in which two unions are fighting for the power and dues, to destroy property and beat up American workmen whose only offense is a determination to earn a living at their regular employment.

Union officials such as Mr. Meany have kidded the public a long time with the bland pretense that they regard such reactions as reactions against labor. They know, however, that the object of this reactionary feeling is not labor, but the arrogant, criminal oppression of labor by certain unionists.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

A NEW DEALER'S OPINIONS Whenever the train, plane, or automobile brings a New Dealer to town, I think he should not have his light hidden under the bushel basket of the anti-New Deal sentiment abroad in the land.

There was yesterday in our town Dr. Clark H. Foreman, chief of the power division of PWA, and mentioned now and then for even more important positions under the New Deal banner. It was Dr. Foreman who occupied a prominent place in the "purge" of last summer as attempted in Georgia. He is a capable young man. No one of his opponents denies that fact. He was in Atlanta as the temporary chief of the NEC and the RFC. Having fought his fight and lost, he returned to his real position as head of the PWA power division, a very important post.

Hereafter, the sayings are Dr. Foreman's. They are his opinions, comments and ideas offered without any accompanying argal and or protestations. Dr. Foreman has the floor and will relinquish it when the space is consumed. Dr. Foreman:

THE GREATEST LIBERAL "I do not know whether or not Mr. Roosevelt will be a third-term candidate. I think there probably is less likelihood of it now than there was, but I hope he will. I think he is the greatest liberal of our time."

"Define a liberal? My idea of a liberal is that he is one who is more interested in the human resources of the country than in the economic structure. If change has to be made in that structure to save the human resources he is willing to make that change."

"A conservative? First, my idea of a radical is that while the liberal wishes to make these changes gradually, the radical and Communist wish to make them all at once. I believe in the capitalist system and wish to preserve it. That is why I think it important to have a liberal and not a radical or even conservative administration. Now for the conservative, he has what he wants, or rather likes what he has, and does not want to change at all. The natural wealth requires continuous development. If this does not happen through private business then the government must do it. It is just like the process of rain. The sun must take up moisture and then let it fall over the nation. So it must be with the natural wealth."

"For that reason I am sure we must have government spending continued in some form, either through pensions, or work relief. Congress expanded the spending in the social security amendments. This means more spending. I am sure it will be beneficial."

ENGLAND AND AMERICA "You ask me about why England's spending through armaments has apparently been more beneficial than our spending through work relief, both being temporary measures."

"In the first place, it is not fair to compare England and the United States. It is more fair to compare the spending in a section of our country, say New England, with England than our whole country."

"The spending in England has been entirely on armaments. That means it has been industrial spending. A great part of our spending has gone into agriculture. England's agriculture largely stems from Canada, Australia and South Africa. These dominions are not in good condition. That is why it is not fair to compare our spending with England's."

"I prefer to build roads, parks, schools and rebuild agriculture rather than spend it all on guns and arms. I think our spending is accomplishing more. The beneficial results of our spending will be here when the guns and ships are obsolete."

"A PROSPECTIVE SPLIT?" "I don't know whether or not there will be a split in the Democratic party. I see no reason why there should be one."

"In my opinion there will not be a split unless the hatred of those so unbalanced in their anger against the President deliberately wreck their party in order to take personal revenge on the President. There is violent and unreasoning hatred. That alone can bring about a split."

"I think the people will resent any such action and if the party is split the men who are responsible will not be sustained by the people."

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS? "What about government in the power business? In the first place, the government does not want to replace private business. It wants to co-operate and is co-operating in obtaining more service for more people and cheaper rates. I want to say that, for the most part, the private companies are co-operating and using the available government lotteries to extend their service."

"I think the TVA settlement is splendid. It will, for the first time, make available a yardstick of the entire service, from generation through transmission and distribution."

"I want to emphasize the fact that there is no desire or intention to be hostile to private business or to replace it. Instead there is every desire for co-operation that the desired end of rates and service be obtained."

That's his story.

Save the Poorest Nubbins for Seed and Soon Every Ear Will Be a Nubbin

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

The plan of nature preserves the species by showing small regard for the individual. The weaklings who can't run fast enough or fight hard enough, or bear the hardships of normal existence, are eliminated before they can reproduce their kind. Thus, only the fittest survive to get progeny, and the race is preserved from its own weaknesses.

Dr. Hooten, the famous anthropologist, says the Jews are a superior breed, able to get ahead in any competition, because ages of persecution killed off their weaklings and let none but the toughest survive, while the persecutors tenderly preserved their own weaklings and doomed their race to slow but certain deterioration. Be sure your sins will find you out.

The Spartans had the right idea, but a crude method. Infants regarded as culls or seconds were placed where wild or other carnivores would find them during the night. Unfortunately, this method of choosing survivors took no account of intellectual fitness, and the race got no lasting benefit.

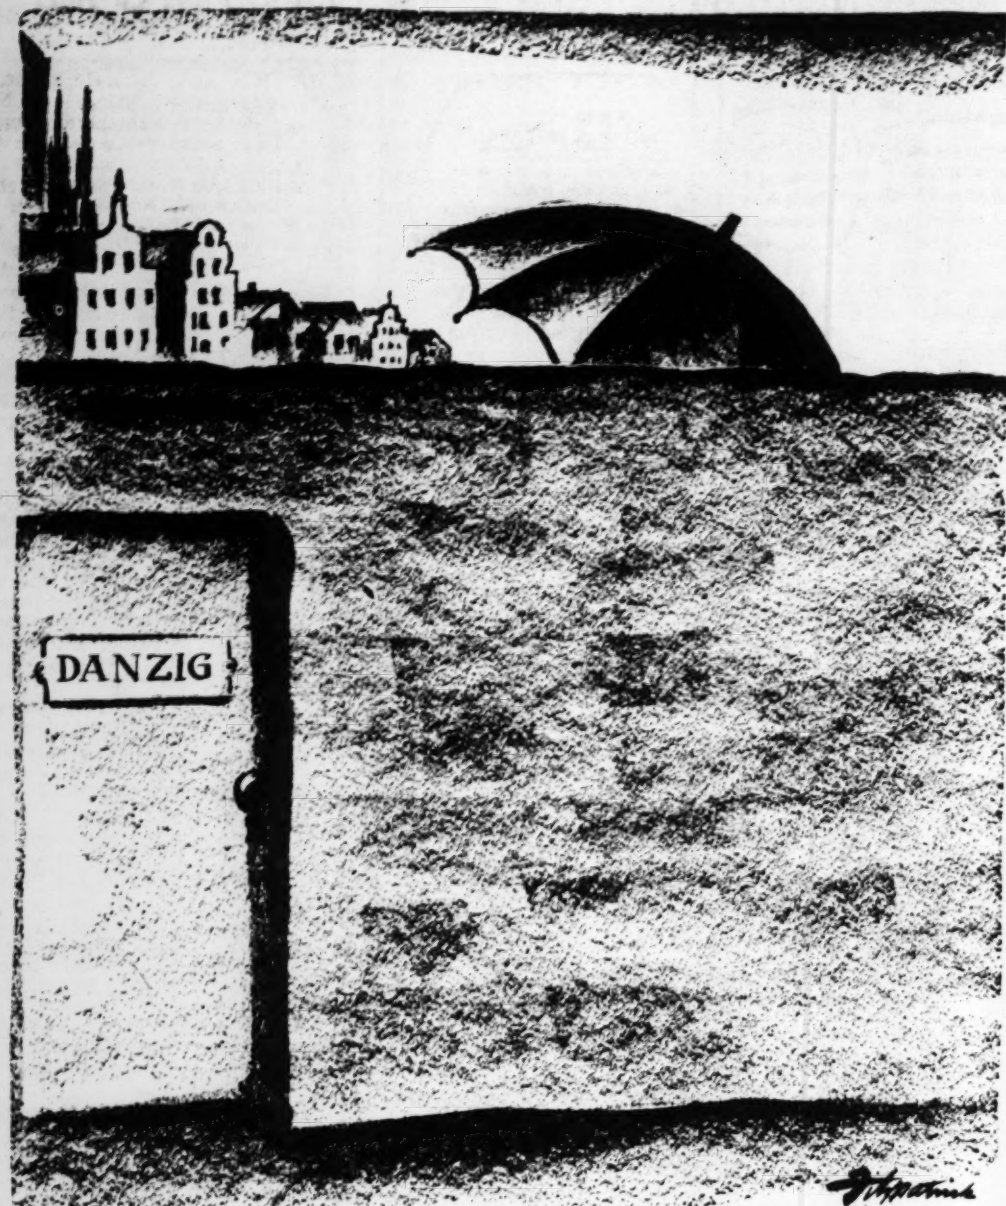

Our civilized race isn't brutal enough to adopt the Spartan method, and is still too strong to enjoy the benefits of persecution. But having violated nature's plan, we must find some workable substitute or slowly degenerate into a mass of morons.

The chief causes of our troubles are freedom and unthinking pity—freedom to produce children for others to support, and the pity that supports them without doing anything to prevent further production.

Sociologists who keep up with these things tell us that 60 per cent of the next generation will come from relief families, which means that people of this group, 20 years from now, can take complete control of the government and the nation's resources. It isn't necessary to say that many high-grade, intelligent people are on relief through no fault of their own. We all know that. But in the nature of things the first to need relief are the unfittest, and these unfortunate, uniformly prolific, are the people who are providing a generation to inherit America.

Suggest that something be done about it, and the cheap demagogues answer that "every man has the right to have children." That is the rankest nonsense. No man has a right to impose on others. Nobody has a right to bring children into the world

MEXICO OFFERS U. S. SETTLEMENT ON OIL

Envoy Says Government Is Willing To Make Just Payment to Firms.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Mexico's envoy to the United States said tonight his government was willing to make "just and effective payment of compensation" to this country's oil companies whose properties were expropriated 17 months ago.

Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera, in a written statement made public at a press conference, said three courses were open for settlement of the controversy—the first involving collaboration in exploitation of the properties, the second payment in oil taken from the seized wells, and the third "fair" cash compensation after an appraisal in which the companies' representatives would participate.

In case an agreement were reached for joint operation, the ambassador told a questioner, Mexico would be willing to grant the companies a minority representation on a board of directors which would control the properties.

German Army Stands Ready For Any Kind of Emergency

Reich Press Raises Ante for Appeasement; Want Danzig, Corridor.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER.
BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Germany has put finishing touches to "preparedness" measures, which may go into history as the most stupendous of their kind, and today stands ready for any emergency the future may hold.

From the high Tatra mountains in Slovakia to the Baltic, the German army, renouncing the formality of mobilization, now is ready at any moment to enforce, if necessary, Adolf Hitler's demands for unconditional return of the Free City of Danzig to the Reich, and for the physical junction of East Prussia to Germany proper.

The newspapers today, at it at the pressing of a button, suddenly raised the ante for appeasement by insisting, with one accord, that Danzig alone will not satisfy German pride and prestige. Pomorze, the so-called Polish corridor, it is now openly stated, is as essential as Danzig.

If these pressure tactics should not produce an inclination to give Hitler what he wants, and if the Fuehrer should decide to hold his forces in leash for a while longer nevertheless, then he may be expected to seize upon two events to tell the German people and the world in person what he demands.

These two events are the 25th anniversary of the Battle of Tannenberg on August 27 and the annual Nuremberg party convention, September 2-11.

The Battle of Tannenberg is an event which Germans proudly remember as one of the high spots of their military prowess in the World War. The setting is perfect, considering the proximity of the Tannenberg to Poland and the Corridor, for Hitler to deal with those subjects if he wishes.

As for Nuremberg, the German people have not forgotten the portentous significance of last year's convention for Czechoslovakia.

For some time mid-August has been mentioned as the time for German preparedness measures to be completed.

Hence, it is generally expected that Hitler will voice his demands of Poland in no uncertain terms. Germans are supremely confident he will score another bloodless victory and bring Danzig "home into the Reich," as he did with the Sudeten Germans last September.

But should something go amiss and war come, everything is done to inculcate serene confidence in the invincibility of the German people.

BALDWIN ASSERTS FREEDOM IS ISSUE

Ex-Prime Minister of Britain Says Next War To Find Democracies United.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The freedom of mankind will be at stake in the next war, former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, of Great Britain, asserted tonight after the group he addressed had been criticized as "merely a propaganda agency to help enlist America on the side of Britain and France."

Ralph Borsodi, economist-author, had suggested the suggestion of propaganda and criticized the Congress on Education for Democracy for not listing speakers from the so-called dictatorships.

"If we are to win," Baldwin said, "it will find us as a people united as we have never been before; powerful in material resources, and believing in our hearts that on the issue depends ultimately the freedom of mankind."

conditionally handing the Free City of Danzig to Germany was also made clear that "an arrangement whereby East Prussia is connected with the Reich by a strip across the Polish Corridor" must be included.

Polish Soldier Slain.
The Danzig situation was aggravated by the killing of a Polish soldier on Danzig soil, but there seemed to be a disposition on both sides not to let the incident become a starting point for a final break. Poles, however, announced the arrest of several score Germans on espionage charges.

Informants said that a conference in Danzig yesterday between League of Nations Commissioner Professor Carl J. Burckhardt, Arthur Greiser, Danzig senate president, and Marian Chodacki, Polish commissioner general, over customs administration was "purely technical, not political."

Official Poland remained detached from all settlement reports, although it was said the British-Polish alliance soon would be signed formally.

Great Britain was said to view the situation as "serious but not alarming." However a census of her manpower was ordered.

Great Britain Fears New Crisis; Skeptical on 'Peace Talk.'

By SIR ARTHUR WILLERT.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.
LONDON, Aug. 16.—(By Wire)—The spasm of "peace talk" produced by the visit of Dr. Karl Burckhardt, League of Nations high commissioner for Danzig, to Chancellor Hitler does not impress responsible circles here, among which there is agreement with the remark attributed to President Roosevelt, that the situation is about what it was two weeks ago and rather worse than it was two months ago.

The great question at issue is whether diplomacy can stultify the logic of the situation, which is that a head-on collision between Germany and Poland, with Britain and France piling in behind, is almost inevitable. Not only has Hitler given no sign of abandoning his intention of making Danzig German, but information now being received from reliable Berlin sources indicates that his belief that, in the last resort, the western democracies will not fight actually is stronger than it was.

London consequently is nervously itself for a most violent crisis and word has gone out to the appropriate authorities to be ready for anything at any time.

The best information available about the meeting of Hitler and Count Ciano is that the Italian foreign minister stressed three things—namely, Italy's desire, first, to avoid war; secondly, if it could not be avoided, to postpone it until the Alps are covered by the winter snows.

Italy's comprehensive French invasion; thirdly, that the totalitarian powers should try to bring about a general conference at which Italy's African claims, such as those regarding the Suez Canal, Djibouti and Tunis, should be as strongly urged as Germany's European pretensions. If this information is correct, everything goes to point that Hitler's answer would have been that he also wants to avoid war and thinks that it can be avoided by Munichizing the western democracies over Danzig, in the first instance.

News from Poland indicates that Hitler hopes to treat her precisely as he treated Czechoslovakia. German agents are reported to be working to injure her stability by stirring up trouble among the German elements in Polish Silesia and elsewhere, while it is openly boasted in Berlin that one of the major objectives to ruin Poland morally and materially by forcing her to keep her army mobilized indefinitely.

Hitler thus has two objectives on the Vistula—first, to please German opinion by a warless triumph over Danzig, and secondly, to further his campaign for the domination of Europe by gradually weakening Poland's resistance until she falls into his organization as another satellite state.

Can democratic diplomacy produce a Danzig solution which would give Hitler his window dressing triumph, save Poland from the fate of Czechoslovakia, and, by relieving the tension on the Vistula, diminish the danger that Hitler, in his contempt of democracy, will make some coup which would lead to Polish resistance and a general war?

"That's an absolute lie!" Kuhn shouted. "A flat lie!"

Starnes jumped to his feet and lunged toward the witness, stumbling through photographers and newsmen. A big capitol policeman ploughed through after him but seemingly could not overtake the irate congressman. Another made for Kuhn, who, red-faced, was still placidly seated in the witness chair.

"Are you against Nazism in the United States?"

"Absolutely. It is something for Germany but it wouldn't fit the United States. Conditions are different here."

"Is there any difference between national socialism in Germany and the type of government you would favor here?"

"We have two entirely different problems."

Kuhn testified, too, that he heads several organizations allied with the bund, all of which jointly pay him a salary of $300 monthly.

Had Invited Moseley.
When the bund held its celebrated Madison Square Garden rally last winter, he told the committee, Father Charles E. Coughlin, Major General George Van Horn Moseley, retired—a recent occupant of the committee's witness chair—and James True, of

U. S. TO SEND TWO ON RIO CRASH QUIZ

Air Safety Board Experts Fly From Miami Sunday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Air Safety Board of the Civil Aeronautics Authority announced today it would send two officials to Rio de Janeiro to investigate the crash of a Pan-American Airways flying boat there Sunday.

Ten of 12 passengers and all four members of the crew were killed in the accident.

G. C. Miller, chief of the Air Safety Board's technical section, and Fred M. Glass, chief of its examining section, will leave Miami Sunday morning aboard a Pan-American Clipper and are scheduled to arrive in Rio Wednesday.

Quizzed on Pledge.
Starnes drew from Kuhn an agreement that bund members were pledged to "defend by all means the good name of their mother country—Germany."

Starnes asked Kuhn why the "mother country" pledge was "necessary."

"Because," Kuhn came back, "every time you open a paper you see something about Germany."

When Starnes continued to press him about his trip to see Hitler in 1936, Kuhn blurted in his deep guttural accent:

"Why don't you bring Mr. Hearst here, he saw Hitler, too. Why don't you bring Mr. Baruch here; he saw Stalin."

Kuhn apparently referred to William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, and Bernard M. Baruch, the banker.

PEOPLE, DEBTS, LOANS AND MONEY IN THIS REPORTER'S STORY!

"I'm here for my interview," I told Mr. Kemp. "Want one based on the old nose-for-nose formula: 'Who? What? When? Where? Why?' as it concerns financial problems." Mr. Kemp readily agreed to give me the story.

"That's a splendid idea, Redins. Five interviews in one. Well, let's begin with 'WHO?' 'WHO?' in the plural sense means everybody—men and women. It means old and young. It means all regardless of politics or religion. Or whether professional men or common laborers. They can all borrow from

$50 to $1,000 at Once

"That's your second point: 'WHAT?' meaning money. That's the thing much happiness is built on. Money. A man can't be thoroughly at ease if he has a lot of old bills to pay. He can't be satisfied if his family need clothing and other necessities, if there is no money in the house. Then he begins to realize his precarious position in life, which brings up the next thought.

"WHEN?" There's always danger in delay. If a man is out of luck and needs money badly for any good purpose, he should borrow AT ONCE. Postponing the matter only aggravates the situation. The family becomes unhappy, while the creditors become unreasonable.

"WHERE?" is the next step that is easily answered by directing the borrower to the Industrial Loan and Security Co., 221 Grant Building, where $50 to $1,000 loans may be granted to any responsible person on simple endorsements or any form of collateral.

"WHY?" go to the Industrial Loan people? That is simple. First, because their rates are low. Monthly payments are very easy to meet and the borrower has two years to repay if desired. Borrowers are also treated with the utmost respect at the Industrial. The loan is made without red tape and without prying into business or private affairs, and in secrecy, in a private room. The borrower gets the money on the spot.

"There's the whole story, Redins. Tell that to the people. And when they're hard-pressed for money, they'll know where to go."

This is an actual interview with Mr. Kemp by J. A. Redins, writer on financial subjects, and forms one of a series of advertisements of the Industrial Loan and Security Co., 221 Grant Bldg., of which Mr. Kemp is vice president in charge of loans. Call on him.

Delaroque Gives Manon Her Passport And Insists She Go to the Opera

By GERTRUDE GELBIN.

SYNOPSIS. Bill Carey meets Manon de Vargues, beautiful French half-caste in Saigon. Pierre Delaroque, richest and most influential man in Indo-China, is madly in love with Manon. But Bill and Manon fall in love with each other. When Delaroque asks Manon to be his wife, she accepts his proposal because she fears he is powerful enough to prevent her marriage to Bill. However, instead of marrying Delaroque, she secretly marries Bill. Delaroque, therefore, makes it impossible for Bill either to secure a passport which will take Manon out of Saigon or to secure a job to support her. Their plight becomes desperate when their money gives out. Bill cannot understand the cause of their difficulties. But Manon knows it is Delaroque. She decides to appeal to him personally without Bill's knowledge. Delaroque makes a bargain with her; he will secure her a passport in exchange for a month of love. He makes it possible for Bill to get a job with the Saigon Rubber Company—a job that takes him far inland and keeps him out of Saigon for a month. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT VIII.

The manager encouraged him with a bright smile. "Exactly. An opening. A very fine opening for the right young man."

Within short order and with no difficulty, Bill convinced the manager that he was precisely the right young man for the job.

He rushed home to break the good news to Manon.

"I must take it, darling," he explained, "even if it has its drawbacks. I have to go inland for a whole month. And the company won't permit me to take my wife."

Manon, hearing him speak so joyously and unhesitatingly of the job which she had paid so dearly for him to get, burst into tears.

The next morning they stood on the pier, saying goodbye.

"Manon," he whispered as he held her close, "what do you say? Do we defy the Saigon Rubber Company and take you along?"

"They won't permit women," she wept. "There's no place there for them."

"I know. But wouldn't you like to come?"

"Oh, Bill! Yes! Yes!"

"That's what I wanted to hear. Now come on—don't look like that—or I go back on the bread-line."

She fixed her mouth in a heart-broken smile.

"It's only for a month, Manon," he comforted.

"A month isn't long—after it's over. And listen, Manon. When I get back, we'll talk to the Governor and we'll get out together."

"Yes, yes, together."

"Monsieur Carey," called the Purser. "We're ready to pull up the gangplank."

"One more minute," begged Bill. He held Manon at arms length and stared hard at her as if to photograph every detail of her in his mind. "You'll be alright?" he asked at last.

She nodded, her tears making words impossible.

"Me, too," he promised.

"You will write me, Bill?"

"Every night."

She threw her arms about him and clung to him desperately. "Oh, Bill—remember how I love you—"

"I'll remember nothing else," he murmured.

They kissed each other for the last time, leaving her standing there, her heart in her eyes.

Bill pushed his way to the rail of the stern and waved. She looked after the boat, watching it until it became a speck on the horizon.

A liveried chauffeur appeared suddenly by her side.

"Monsieur Delaroque's car is waiting," he said discreetly.

Manon turned to him with dull eyes. Then, her face expressionless, she walked slowly to the waiting limousine.

Every day in the month that followed Bill's departure, Manon left the sumptuous mansion of Pierre Delaroque to collect her husband's letter at the down-trodden hotel which had been their home. If Delaroque knew the purpose and destination of this daily visit, he said nothing. He showered her with gifts and kindness, and kept her secluded on his estate like some jewel too precious for the world to see.

But one night, at dinner, he announced a different plan for them. "We are going to the opera tonight," he said evenly.

"To the opera?" Manon frowned. "But I don't want to go, Pierre."

"Why?" he asked suavely.

"I don't want to go," she replied with the stubborn determination of a child.

"You are afraid of being seen with me, Manon?"

She looked at him miserably, unable to answer.

"You are afraid someone will tell him when he comes back?" Delaroque continued. "And then he will throw you out—and you will have no one left but me—" he stopped short, his mind busy with his own thoughts. "No one but me," he repeated softly.

She turned away to hide her tears.

"Surely he loves you more than that, Manon!" he said brightly.

"Surely he loves you enough to forgive—if he found out—you going to the opera with me? One evening?"

She remained silent.

"I dropped in today on M'sieur Gobineau," he said suddenly, his voice flat and casual. "It seems the Governor replied to my cable this morning and your passport is in order."

"Pierre!" she cried. "My passport?"

He nodded. "They gave it to me." He removed a small document from his pocket and handed it to her. "Here it is. You see—I keep my promise, Manon. Here are your wings to fly away from me as M'sieur Carey's wife."

She opened the document with trembling fingers. "Oh," she wept. "It's signed—look—here—and the seal—it's sealed—"

she pressed the passport to her heart. "And it says I can go anywhere—anywhere—"

"Shall we start now?" he interrupted.

"Start?" she asked in bewilderment.

"Yes," he smiled. "For the opera."

"The opera?" She smiled at him in a dazed sort of way, her inner happiness blinding her to everything in the world except the thought that Bill and she would now be free people—to go as they wished—to settle in America—

At the opera, Manon sat back in the shadows of the box, her mind filled with her secret, happy thoughts, only half hearing the thrilling music of "Manon Lescaut."

When the opera ended, Delaroque smiled at her. "You see? He forgave Manon!"

Her eyes filled with tears. "Yes—he forgave—"

She was startled into the realization of her whereabouts. She realized that the house lights were on—that she was sitting in full view of the audience, with Pierre Delaroque by her side. She glanced quickly down into the parquet. A score of jeweled loggionettes were fastened upon her. In a moment she was on her feet and hurrying out of the box.

"You will take me home, tonight, please?" she asked nervously when they were settled in his car.

"Why?" he demanded.

"The boat came in this afternoon—there will be a letter—"

"And after you have read this fascinating letter, Manon?"

"No—please—"

He shrugged. "Very well, Manon. I will see you home."

The car stopped before the down-trodden hotel where she and Bill lived. They climbed the dark stairs silently. She entered her room and turned on the lights. He looked about with a wry smile, his eyes taking in every sad detail of the crowded, shabby little room.

"What a sad little dove-cote, Manon!"

She ran to the table and picked up Bill's letter. She opened it breathlessly and read it, happily flooding her face, her lips parting with delight as she devoured each word.

"On the second of the month," she whispered. "He will be back in nine days. In nine days!"

She turned back the pages of the letter and began to read it over again.

"You have read it once, Delaroque said curtly. 'You forget you have a guest.' His manner grew cold and demanding. 'Put down that letter,' he ordered. She stared at him. He rose from the chair. In another moment he held her close in his arms and covered her face with kisses.

Nine days later, Manon stood on the pier, her radiant, happy face turned eagerly upon the passengers disembarking from the Saigon river boat.

She and Bill saw each other at the same moment. For a brief instant they stared at one another and then, drawn by the same irresistible power, they ran into each other's arms.

Later, in their hotel room, after he had told her all about his month's work in the jungle, she revealed her happy surprise.

"Bill! The Governor—I saw him last week—he's changed his mind. And Bill—he's given me a passport!"

Bill let out a warwhoop of happiness and seized her in his embrace. A knock at the door broke them apart. A native boy brought a letter addressed to Bill.

"What is it?" Manon asked, suddenly apprehensive as she watched him read it.

"It's evidently an item from the society column of the Saigon Herald," he said slowly, showing her a clipping enclosed in the envelope. "I don't mind your having gone to the opera with Delaroque—but why should anyone send the clipping to me?"

He continued reading. "Delaroque, president of the Saigon Rubber Company," he said slowly. He looked up at Manon. "That's interesting. I did not know that."

She remained silent, her face expressionless.

"You went to the opera with him, of course—"

She nodded.

LYONS, CHIEF U. S. BANK EXAMINER, FOR AREA, TO MOVE

Ordered Transferred to New York October 1; Will Be Succeeded by F. D. Williams Here.

Gibbs Lyons, chief national bank examiner for the Sixth Federal Reserve District, with headquarters here, has been ordered transferred to the second district with headquarters in New York, effective October 1, it was announced in Washington yesterday by Preston Delano, comptroller of the currency.

He will be succeeded here by F. D. Williams, now chief examiner for the first district with headquarters in Boston. Comptroller Delano said the changes were in line with the established policy of rotating chief examiners.

A native of Jackson, Ga., Lyons attended Emory College at Oxford and moved to Atlanta in 1917 when he became connected with the Federal Reserve Bank.

In June, 1919, he was appointed clerk in the chief examiner's office here and a year later was made assistant to the national examiner. In 1920 he was appointed assistant national examiner and in 1924 he was transferred to Washington as finance clerk in the insolvent bank division.

He was appointed examiner in 1925 and was assigned to this district as chief examiner in January of last year. Lyons said last night he had been informed of the change by long-distance telephone but had not yet received his official orders.

AUSTIN ACCLAIMED DESPITE WEATHER

Rain Doesn't Dampen Enthusiasm for Crooner on His First Night.

By LUKE GREENE.
Amiable Gene Austin's musical revue was almost turned into a Billy Rose aquacade last night for the group of enthusiastic "first nighters" who braved the mud and water to see the fast-moving, comedy-studded performance.

Although the show was presented under difficulties (namely, the weather), it was well-received and generously applauded by the audience at the Highland avenue show grounds. The troupe will remain in Atlanta all this week.

Sings "My Blue Heaven."
Austin, of course, set the pace with his singing. He crooned his way into the hearts of Atlantans with such old favorites as "My Blue Heaven," "Some of These Days" and other lyrics which have won him a nationwide reputation. His two accompanists—Kandy, the bass fiddle player, and Koko, the poker-faced guitar strummer—provided extra punch with their music and subtle comedy.

Skeets Morris and his Auburn Cavaliers lend plenty of swiny rhythm to the show. Incidentally, the orchestra is one of the outstanding features. The syncopated renditions were roundly applauded many times. Betty Bonney sings with the swingsters.

Has Comedy and Gals.
The performance has a generous sprinkling of good comedy. Ted Claire is especially good as a comedian, and Slim Williams also deserves praise for his interpretation of a negro preacher. The acrobatics are a little slow.

There are also plenty of girls to give the show glamour. A slave dance by one of the pretty dancers is worthy of special mention. The other members of the troupe round out an excellent two hours of entertainment.

The show will be presented again at 8:15 o'clock tonight. And Austin promises there will be plenty of dry land. The troupe was late in arriving yesterday, which accounted for the muddy opening.

STILL TIME TO TRY FOR 'OZ' DRESS CASH

Boys and Girls Up to 16 May Enter in Costume Tomorrow Morning.

Hurry, hurry, hurry!
That's the word today as the deadline draws near in the great "Wizard of Oz" contest sponsored by Loew's Grand theater and The Constitution.

The big contest ends tomorrow, but there is still time to get in the game that will pay dividends in fun and 56 prizes, including $100 in cash.

The contest is open to boys and girls of 16 years or less.

The idea is simple. All you do is to dress up in a costume like that worn by one of the three leading characters in the film, which opens tomorrow at the Grand. The characters are Dorothy the heroine, played in the film by Judy Garland; the Tin Woodman, played by Jack Haley, and the Scarecrow, played by Ray Bolger. To aid contestants, pictures of these characters appear in "The Constitution." Just study the picture, duplicate the costume and wear it to the big masquerade party that will feature the closing of the contest.

Contestants will meet at The Constitution at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. A band will lead the gay parade to the Henry Grady hotel, where the judging will take place.

Remember, there is still time. Get in the contest now.

LIGHTNING STUNS 3 IN WET WAR GAMES

Whole Regiment Lays in Sudden Grass To Hold on to Positions.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(UP)—The roar of cannon and the staccato rattle of machine gun fire mingled with thunder and lightning today as opposing forces of America's first army engaged in the opening encounter of the greatest war games in the nation's history.

A severe electric storm and cloudburst sent umpires scurrying for shelter, while whole regiments of infantry lay in the sodden grass, clinging to positions won after a morning-long engagement.

Lightning bolts felled three infantrymen during the encounter, which umpires declared a draw.

Today's battle was waged between two infantry regiments, each supported by a battery of artillery, observation squadrons and tank platoons.

In a battle for possession of Hill "400" news reporters standing at a crossroad were "wiped out" by artillery fire. An observation plane mistook the group for officers of the opposing force and directed the range to the spot.

Meanwhile, engineers tested their bridge-building ability on the swift-flowing Saranac river, along which the principal battle two-weeks maneuvers will be fought.

PROFESSORS ORATE AT BRIDGES TRIAL

15,000 Words Give Opinion Marx Didn't Mean Revolution by Force.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Two Stanford University professors expounded the theories of Communism as defense witnesses at the Harry Bridges deportation hearing today and the government immediately attacked the testimony of one as "prejudiced and biased."

Dr. Harold Chapman Brown, professor of philosophy, finished reading a 15,000-word paper in which he stated the revolution advocated by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels did not mean revolution by force and violence. "Are you a Communist?" demanded Thomas B. Shoemaker, chief of the government's counsel. "Have you ever been a Communist? Have you ever made application to join the Communist party?"

Shoemaker later declared "Professor Brown is prejudiced and biased, and I hope to show it definitely before I am through."

Dr. Brown and Walter Thompson, professor of political science, each testified they did not believe the Communist party advocated violence in the United States.

The government seeks to deport Bridges, Australian-born west coast CIO labor leader, on the ground the party advocates violence and that he is a member of the organization.

Dr. Brown answered "No."

Gold Loving Cup Adorns Table At 21st Birthday Dinner Party

By Sally Forth.

WHEN Bates Block reached his majority yesterday, his twenty-first birthday anniversary was celebrated at a dinner party given at the Piedmont Driving Club by Mrs. Bates Block, his mother. The gold loving cup adorning the center of the festive table was filled with birthday cards sent to Bates by the 21 girls and boys invited to the party. Aside from its intrinsic value the cup has quite a bit of sentiment connected with its history. It was given Bates by his great-uncle, the late Colonel Robert J. Lowry, who was one of the leading bankers in the south and a prominent Atlanta citizen.

When the late Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry observed their golden wedding anniversary at a brilliant reception given at the Capital City Club, the citizens of Atlanta gave the couple the gold loving cup to commemorate the auspicious event. The late Frank L. Stanton, whose daily columns in The Atlanta Constitution will never be forgotten, composed the following verse, which is engraved upon the surface of the cup:

"To the hearts that love you,
The joy that you have given,
Through fifty years in love of tears,
And around the cup which friends
Beat hearts as true as heaven."

Colonel and Mrs. Lowry were the toast of the city in their day and were married here in 1862. Their golden wedding anniversary was observed in 1912, and they were important factors in the social life of the city for more than half a century.

A GROUP of popular sub-debs will gather at Lakemont this week end to be guests of Jane Troutman, who will entertain at the summer home of her aunt, Mrs. William Carr. Jane, you know, is spending the summer months with Mrs. Carr at the popular resort, where congenial groups of belles have gathered each week end as her guests.

An enjoyable program of entertainment is planned for the belles, including swimming, horse-back riding, boating and badminton—to say nothing of lengthy midnight chats! Invited for the forthcoming week end are Mary King Maddox, Patty Johnson, Emily Lawler, Ann Barnwell and Ann Merritt, of Miami, Fla.

WHEN the S. S. Normandie sailed from New York yesterday among its passengers was a former Atlantan, Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel III. This socially prominent young matron of Bryn Mawr, Pa., is the former Helen Howard, and she sailed with her sons, Tony IV and Clinton. They will land at Havre and go direct to Barritz to join Mr. Drexel, who is enroute in the French residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Jr. Helen's mother, Mrs. C. C. Howard, of this city, was in New York to bid her daughter and grandsons bon voyage as the giant steamer glided out of port.

BEING born "with a silver spoon in one's mouth" is an old expression and one which has literally come true in the case of the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Foster. The baby was born last Saturday at St. Joseph's infirmary, and among her first presents were a silver fork and spoon given her by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. W. H. Smaw, and a silver cup, the gift of Mr. Smaw. The flat silver is in the Plymouth design and matches her parents' handsome silver. Mrs. Foster, you know, is the former Claudia Smaw and is a popular member of the younger set. J. H. Foster and the late Mrs. Foster are the paternal grandparents of the baby.

Among friends presenting the new babe with a present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harold, who gave her a miniature goblet engraved with "P." Mrs. Paul Seydel gave the infant her baby book, which already has her first telegram inserted. It came from Mrs. Charles Powell, of Greensboro, the former Evelyn Birelle, who was Claudia's roommate at Columbia University.

Exercise Prevents and Erases Tell-Tale Signs of Age

Ann Morris, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer featured player, lifts the dumbbells from her sides to a horizontal position in line with her shoulders. This movement develops the shoulders, forearm muscles and wrists.

If You Don't Feel Old, No Excuse For Looking It

By Ida Jean Kain.

Every now and then some woman says, in evident bewilderment at the fleetness of time, "Why, I don't feel a day older than I did at 25." And she means it. Usually, she is someone in the 30's or 40's, has a terrific vitality and an alert and interesting mind—and a figure that belies her feelings! More often than not, she looks decidedly settled and dowagerish.

For one thing, she may be thick through the waist, and youth goes with a slender, supple waist. Also, the difference between the waist and hips may be too little. For a subtly but clearly defined hip-line, the difference between the two measurements should be from 10 to 14 inches.

There are two smaller signs of age, just as disfiguring, the "dowager's hump" which perches on the tip of the vertebra at the back of the neck, and a pendulous contour of the upper arm.

For the most part, these aging signs are brought on not by the years, but by years of inactivity. Women lose their figures long before there is any reason for doing so. The majority begin to "settle" as soon as they give up such lively recreations as tennis, swimming, running and jumping—all of which keep the girls in their teens so slim.

If you can wage a winning battle against laziness, inertia and the thousand and one excuses that crop up to prevent your exercising, you can have a figure that would do credit to a woman 25 years old even when you are a grandmother. Following are three strategic exercises to avert or erase those aging signs:

1. Lie on the floor on the back with the legs straight down and together. Have the upper back flat on the floor as you bring the legs straight up to form a right angle with the trunk, roll at the hips to the right to drop the legs down on the floor at the side, then swing them up at the side and back to right angle. Do the same thing, dropping the legs at the left. After you master the rolling, expand

Without Love No Woman Is Content

By Caroline Chatfield.

When the Live-Alone-and-Like-It author gal got married a while ago, a lot of guffaws went up from the public. You know her life wasn't worth living for several weeks what with the cheap jokes and facetious remarks got off by the smart-alecks at her expense. Well, the joke isn't on that gal, for she did a swell job of whistling. She whistled up fame and fortune and a husband to boot. Joke, if any, is on the gullible readers who didn't know she was whistling to keep her courage up and raise her income.

Of course she was able to whistle so cheerfully and chipperly because she didn't have to live alone. Nobody really likes to live alone except those that don't have to, plus a few crochety individuals who don't like to live at all.

However, in principle and practice, it's great to learn to be content with whatever state we are in and with what we have. A toast to the single woman who can think up the compensations, repeat them aloud like an abracadabra, put them in print, connect with her public, and conjure the shekels out of her public's pocket.

The Live-Alone-and-Like-It lady is good. She mastered the art of housekeeping, business and book writing, and, according to her friends, ran a menage into which were lured interesting men and women who wished to be entertained merrily, fed royally and invited back again. You've got to be good to put that program over.

All of which leads up to one of the funniest things about a female. She howls for independence. She works her head off to achieve it and then she lectures volubly and writes volumes on the joys and delights of freedom. She can deceive the very elect. But what's the first thing she does with her independence? Why she spends it profligately to buy dependence.

And she's not happy until the purchase is complete; for she never has been a woman who was happy and contented without love; and there's no such thing as independence with love; no independence as far as pleasures, pocketbooks, plans for present or future are concerned.

Anyhow it's good to "whistle while you work," good for dwarfs as well as big folks; for you never can tell what you'll whistle up. CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Final Episode In Diamond Mystery

By Harold Sharpsteen.

The final episode in the great diamond mystery, produced and directed by Robert Darvas, finds South successfully negotiating a five-diamond contract, through a fourth and entirely different method of play.

West, who has little or no part in former performances of the deal, now enters the scene in the final climax as victim of a squeeze play at the hands of Declarer South.

West leads the Spade Ace, ruffed by dummy. Dummy leads a small diamond. East plays the Diamond 10 and South ducks. East returns a club, won by dummy's Ace. Dummy's Diamond Queen is returned. Now East's King is allowed to win.

East returns another club, won by dummy's King. Another diamond is led through East. South capturing East's Diamond Jack and in the meantime West squeezed between hearts and spades.

East has made two tricks, the Diamond ten and the Diamond King and the situation now stands:

When South picks up East's Diamond Jack with the Ace, West must discard a heart or a spade. A spade discard gives South four spade tricks in addition to the heart Ace and King. A discard of a heart by West gives dummy an added heart trick. South fulfilling the contract at five diamonds.

Looks simple, but East can spoil this noble effort by South, by leading hearts instead of clubs, when South permits the Diamond 10 and King to hold.

If after winning the first diamond trick, East returns the diamond 7, five-odd is still possible, but if East leads back the Diamond Jack, South can make six-odd, but

MY DAY Finding New Beauties Reading Old Books

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK.—In looking over some clippings which were sent me, I see that Mr. Bruce Barton takes me to task for having attributed some remarks on housing to him and comparing them to a rather involved sentence quoted from Mr. A. P. Herbert. I am sorry if I did Mr. Barton an injustice. I thought that the paper I read attributed certain remarks to him and that I gave the list of remarks correctly. I apologize, however, if I was careless in my reading and accepted what I thought I read without verification.

However, I still want to make the point that Mr. Herbert is right. Many of us today say things in such an involved manner that they are hard to understand, or we do not take the trouble to face ourselves and make sure that we are trying to give our true convictions when we speak.

Last night was almost cold and we sat up and talked much later than usual, for Mr. Donald Stephens and two young women were here. The talk drifted into reading aloud. Poems which I have not read for many years were found in books which I had almost forgotten I possessed. Have you found in reading certain things that you discover new beauties and meanings in the lines? One of the young girls said that she had heard someone trying to describe a southern lady the other day and when I read that particular bit out of Benet's "John Brown's Body," which is to my mind the best description of a lady some 50 years back almost anywhere in this country, she remarked: "How much better it would have been if that could have been read then."

I noticed that Emily Post, in an article the other day, stressed the value of formalities, using as an example the charm of the Queen of England. It is true that formalities add greatly to certain occasions, but I think they should be kept in their proper place, for if they creep in too often, they tend to make people a little unnatural and self-conscious. The charm of most Americans is that they can forget formality when the occasion warrants it.

We had a lady from South Africa, who has been on a trip through eastern Canada and is on her way back to England, lunch with us today. She had many adventures in getting here, but she was impressed with the kindness of Americans when they met people in trouble. She is young and pretty and I am not at all surprised that everyone was willing to lend her a helping hand. She finally got our Hyde Park postmaster to deliver her at our cottage door, and I am glad to say that she reassured her by saying that she would find I was a pleasant woman even if you were late for lunch.

We had a young English girl with us also, who is over here representing the League of Nations Youth Groups. These groups are well organized in England and affiliated with the International World Youth Congress Group. She also praised the kindness and hospitality of all the young people she had met in America.

Diets For Feeding the Sick Present Special Problems

By SALLY SAVER.

Sometimes, after you've done your dead-level best to feed everyone properly and to keep them well, somebody will up and get sick. It's very disconcerting, but apparently there is nothing you can do about it except to follow the doctor's advice and get them well again as soon as possible.

Feeding the sick or convalescent presents special problems, dependent, of course, upon what kind of illness is involved and what kind of diet the physician prescribes. If he says "a soft diet for a day or two," or "a liquid diet today" and with that closes up his little black bag and scurries off to the next patient, often your mind goes blank and you can think of nothing that goes in a "soft" diet, or nothing but water as a liquid.

Here's hoping your family will always be well and in no need of special diets, but in case you are not always so fortunate, these suggestions for special feeding might prove helpful.

In cases of acute illness the digestive system must be given as much rest as possible and usually the doctor prescribes a liquid diet. A liquid diet means:

Liquid Diet.
1. Milk; plain or flavored with cocoa or fruit juices; and the milk may contain raw eggs well beaten into it.
2. Broths: beef juices or other meat extracts.
3. Soups: cream soups and clear soups.
4. Strained fruit juices.
5. Strained gruels, thinned with milk.

A soft diet includes a few semi-solid foods. A soft diet may contain:

Soft or Light Diet.
1. Milk and milk drinks, malted milk, etc.
2. Fruit juices.
3. Beef tea, clear and cream soups.

If you need to keep weight down the safest plan is to eat in as wide variety as always, but to eat less. In practically all feeding quality is of greater importance than quantity.

Doctor's Opinion Of Treatments For Dog Bite

By Dr. William Brady.

Medical authority is the accumulated weight of the expressed opinion of eminent doctors of the past and the present. The very idea makes me wince.

Dogs and some other animals do go mad. I am not a veterinary and my notions concerning the cause of irrational behavior in such animals are strictly amateur notions. I fancy various illnesses may make animals delirious or maniacal, because we know that various illnesses may make a man delirious, maniacal or mad.

The weight of medical authority concerning the occurrence of rabies in man is overwhelming, almost. And so is the weight of public health authority, that is, the belief or honest conviction of all health officers or public health administrators, so far as I know, is that a bite, scratch or wound inflicted by a dog or other animal that has rabies is likely to inoculate the victim with rabies. A person so inoculated or infected is, according to the medical and health authorities, almost certain to die of rabies, unless the person is immediately given Pasteur treatment.

The safest course to follow in every case of bite, scratch or wound by dog or other animal that may possibly be rabid is as follows, according to the recognized medical and health authorities:

1. Capture the animal and confine it under the observation of a veterinary physician.

2. Do not kill the animal until competent observers determine whether the animal has rabies.

3. Immediate treatment of the wound by a surgeon. If medical attention is not within call, then immediate cauterization of the wound with pure nitric acid, sometimes called "fuming" nitric acid.

4. In the absence of the opinion of a veterinary physician that the animal is not rabid, begin Pasteur treatment at once—any physician anywhere can administer the Pasteur virus in his office or in the patient's home—usually not less than 14 daily injections are given; some health authorities advise 21 daily injections of Pasteur virus.

Personally, I'd have neither the crude cauterization nor any Pasteur virus if I were wounded by an animal presumably rabid. I'd prefer to rely on immediate surgical treatment of the wound in the ordinary way, plus an immediate injection of tetanus serum, and a second injection of the same serum a week later, as a precaution against possible lockjaw.

So, if the great preponderance of medical opinion of the day is against my peculiar belief, I'm sorry, but I can only give my conscientious belief. I tell you what I'd do. You had better do as your family doctor advises in any circumstance.

Helen Parrish has joined the Hollywood rush for fall fashions, and here she is displaying a youthful fitted coat of novelty salt and pepper tweed, with a black suede belt and flared skirt.

Advance Campus Models Worn by Helen Parrish

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 16.—Hollywood looks ahead. Pictures are now being made on hot sound stages for release in the fall, and fashion is on the same ahead schedule. At the recent Los Angeles Fall Market Exposition, Helen Parrish purchased several of the advance campus models.

Extremely useful and youthful is the fitted coat of novelty salt and pepper tweed . . . black suede belt . . . flared skirt . . . tiny jaunty Johnny collar . . . adorned in front with plastron of small tailored buttons.

Helen went in a big way for the two-piece, canary-colored lounging pajamas of luxurious warm chenille—very nice for the dormitory.

Other buys of the 16-year-old actress included a two-piece flannel dress in navy, bordered with French blue . . . fitted rib-hugging jacket . . . wide circular skating skirt . . . square-labeled collar and a one-piece shirtwaist dress in plaid wool, in shades of beige, gold brown . . . knife-pleated skirt . . . her belt boasted a true western touch with the swaggle leather laced with leather thongs.

Here are some general notes on college clothes at the exposition. . . . Keynoting everything turned out by Los Angeles designers is a youthful spirit, an authentic feeling for casual life, a sure sense of freedom in the fashion world have become synonymous with the word "California" . . . a great run on tiny checks . . . a use of velvet trim, which carries on the "little girl" trend . . . a recurrence of the military motif, as manifested in much use of braided trim, double-breasted effects, etc. Prediction for this fall's high-style collar—green in many tones.

In answer to my question, "What clothes does a cameraman prefer?" Howard Shoup, Warner's ace designer, answered, "We always design clothes to be as unobtrusive as possible lest they detract from a player's own personality. Before the eyes of the camera the smartest clothes are the simplest ones but with an unusual bit of detail to draw some attention to her clothes. This is especially true of printed materials. Loud or large designs are smart but were never meant for the screen, as they photograph twice as large."

Howard's idea of a good screen print is the one Brenda Marshall is wearing in "Career Man." Small green four-leaf clovers on white crepe. It is styled with lines and details to play up Brenda's exotic beauty—a full skirt simulates slenderness by being draped to one hip. And an unusual style note is the green felt Peter Pan collar.

Attracting a great deal of attention is the revamped library of the club and gracing the walls is the collection of photographs of each succeeding president of the club since its organization in 1895, showing the transition of styles in dress and coiffure. On display are scrapbooks, numbering 1,700 pages with the Atlanta Woman's Club. These valuable scrapbooks, beginning with Mrs. Loewe's election to the presidency on November 5, '95, in the Grand Theater building and continuing through each administration.

Scrapbook No. 1 with its 500 pages gives a detailed story of the organization of the club. Newspaper columns tell of the most brilliant and representative women of the city being inspired with the idea, that through organization and by educational methods, they might assist in the elevating of the moral, social and economic standards of life, the object of the club being threefold—social, literary and humanitarian.

During the administration of Mrs. Irving Thomas the Baker street property was sold and the Wimbish home at 1150 Peachtree was purchased and became the present home of the Atlanta Woman's Club. Records show that the idea of a farmers' curb market for Atlanta was developed, the outgrowth of which was the erection of the Atlanta Municipal Curb Market on Edgewood avenue. The building fund for the club theater, seating 750 people was begun during the presidency of Mrs. Thomas and completed under the administration of Mrs. D. M. Boykin.

During Mrs. Boykin's term of office the magnificent banquet hall with a seating capacity of five hundred was erected. During the administration of Mrs. Norman Sharp the swimming pool was added to the plant.

In perusing these scrapbooks one is inspired by the vast program of welfare and educational work that has gone on through every day and every year of the club's life. No written history could mean to its members what these clippings, pictures, printed programs, given by newspaper friends.

Camp Fire Girls Plan Annual Reunion

The annual reunion of Camp Fire Girls who have attended Camp Toccoa or participated in the city summer activities will be held today at Avondale swimming pool. Each girl will bring her own lunch and 10 cents for swimming. The meeting will be in the nature of a rally and will bring to a close the day-camp program which has been in progress since June 22, under direction of Miss Capitola B. Mattingly, local field secretary. Camp Toccoa closed on Monday.

The snap-shot contest, a feature of the day-camp program, was won by Miss Beverly Diehl, of Atlanta, a member of the Idaka group of Bass Junior High. This announcement was first made at the city-wide council fire held recently at Avondale. The snap-shot was taken when Atlanta Camp Fire Girls visited the Ocmulgee national monument at Macon, Ga., and is a picture of the log entrance of the council chamber. The picture will be included in a report to the day-camp program and sent to the National Camp Fire Girls headquarters in New York City.

PERRIN WALKER JOINS RIVERSIDE FOR '39-40 SESSION

Ex-Tech, Petrel To Serve on Faculty and Athletic Staff.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Registrar James K. Mooney of the Riverside Military Academy announced today the addition to the faculty for the 1939-40 session of Perrin Walker, who will serve as a teacher and member of the athletic staff, devoting special attention to track, a sport in which he won national honors.

Lieutenant Walker, an Atlanta, is an alumnus of Georgia Tech and Oglethorpe University. He received his A. B. degree in education at Oglethorpe after leaving Georgia Tech and will soon receive his A. M. degree.

The tall athlete won the 100-meter National A. A. U. championship in 1937, which resulted in a trip to Scandinavia where he won 35 races in as many starts, setting two European records in the 100-meter and 200-meter dashes. Last year he established a new world's record at Chicago in winning the 60-yard indoor championship.

When in high school in 1932, Walker won the national interscholastic 200-yard championship. He was Southeastern conference champion in the two dashes while at Georgia Tech. He is expected to be on the United States team in the next Olympic games.

FAQUIN ENTERS QUARTER-FINALS

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Rain interrupted the progress of the national public parks tennis championships today, but stopped early enough to allow a third seeded player, Mike McAnaney, of New Orleans, No. 6, to make an unexpected exit.

McAnaney, following the top-ranked Los Angeles pair of Willis Anderson and Julius Heldman to the scrap heap, yielded to Phil Rubel, respected local player, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4. McAnaney, an exponent of the forcing type of game, moved unconcernedly about the rain-sodden court and Rubel used his counter-attacking methods to good avail.

Rubel was accompanied into the quarter-final round by Lou Faquin, of Memphis, Tenn., and John Nogrady, of New York, the two unranked entries who were responsible for the exodus of Anderson and Heldman yesterday. Faquin, troubled throughout by the treacherous footing, managed to hang on a 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-1 triumph over Edward Moylan, of Trenton, N. J., while Nogrady bested Donald Hume, of Brooklyn, 6-2, 6-0, 6-2.

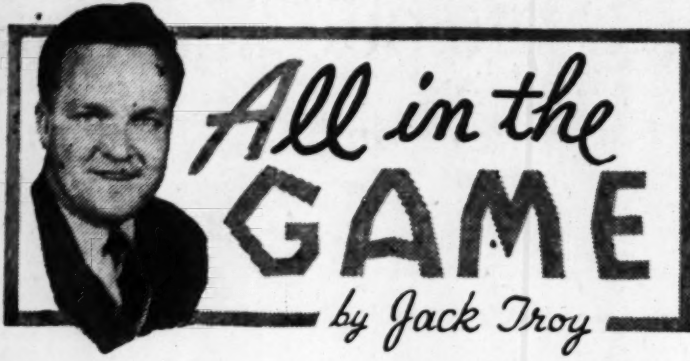

A fourth quarter finalist on the abbreviated program was eighth-seeded Sumner Rodman, of Boston, who turned back A. Bilzberger, of Washington, D. C., 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. The four remaining quarter-final posts will be filled tomorrow.

SOFTBALL

Rain has caused postponement of play in the city softball tournament for the past two days. Play will be resumed tonight, however, weather permitting. On Grady field the Police Department, 1938 Georgia state champs, will meet Brooks-Zuker-Ten-Ten. The winner of this game will be eligible to compete in the state tournament which is scheduled to begin Monday, August 21. The loser must play the winner of the 5-15 game between the Atlanta Company and Southern Spring Bed Company to determine the second team from Atlanta eligible to compete in the state meet. This game will be played Friday night at Grady field.

The first round of the "A" girls' city tournament was played Monday night and play was halted on account of rain. Play in the girls' tournament will be resumed Thursday with General Shoe Corporation playing Fair Clothing Company at Piedmont park, at 8 o'clock, followed by the Sims Coal Company-National Biscuit Company game at 9:15 p. m.

News item from the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch: "Jewell Humphries, 16-year-old brother of Johnny Humphries, former Cleveland Indian right-hander, and Willis Woods, 15-year-old outfielder, have been approached by scouts of the Atlanta Crackers and have been offered board and tuition at a leading prep school in Georgia, it was learned."

"Humphries and Wood, both members of the Clifton Forge American league team, Virginia champions, returned from Belmont, N. C., tonight and said officials of the Atlanta club had approached them while here."

"Humphries is the team's leading pitcher, having won 10 and lost only one during the season, while Woods is hitting at a .394 clip. Both said they were interested in the proposition and intimated they may enter school in the fall."

Earl Mann, who was found shoeing ducks out of center field at Ponce de Leon, said, "Well, that's certainly news to me."

"It has not been our policy to send boys through school and I hardly think we'll change now."

"Four years of prep school might lead to four years of college. And then suppose the boy wanted to study to be a doctor or lawyer and decided he didn't want to play baseball, after all?"

"I'll admit our scouts seem to be on their toes in various sections, but they aren't offering any scholarships this season."

"I'm afraid, anyway, after eight years of schooling I might be too old to appreciate a prospect's ability."

A RATHER LARGE ORDER.
Jack Dempsey has his own ideas about the fighter who can beat Joe Louis. He expresses his ideas in Look.

Dempsey's fighter is six feet, three inches, weighs 210 pounds and has the roaring voice, braggadocio, and handle-bar mustaches of John L. Sullivan.

The old Manassa Mauler has borrowed from many great champions, Sullivan included, for his super-fighter. This fighter would have the tremendous reach and deadly left of Bob Fitzsimmons, the defensive skill of Jack Johnson, the physical fitness of Gene Tunney, the oak tree stamina of Jim Jeffries, the trickiness of Kid McCoy, the speed of Jim Corbett and the right hand of Georges Carpentier. He modestly leaves himself out of it.

Dempsey says he'd like to see a fight between his man and Louis, whom he calls a great fighter, though not a superlative one.

THE COPY CATS!
Joe Parham Jr., sports editor of the North Georgia Tribune, edited by Tom Arnold, writes:

"Dear Jack:
"Evidently Etowah river fish read The Constitution."

"Dewey Doss, boating on the near-by Etowah, was surprised when a bass leaped into the boat."

"A Tribune reporter, interviewing the fish, discovered that the bass was jealous of the publicity given recent exploits of the finny tribe at Jackson lake and had set out to make a name for himself (or herself). So help me."

P. S. And made a frying pan, instead, eh Joe?

YES, SIR-E-E-E.
G. E. Bernal, Atlanta resident, notes:

"Dear Sir:
"You made a slight error in your today's Ferdinand corner. You stated that the Texas league was having the hottest race in organized baseball."

"The mistake was this: What about our own Georgia-Florida league? Moultrie is leading the league, but they're only eight and one-half games in front of Americus, which is holding down SEVENTH position. That's pretty close, I call it."

Ferdinand's corner: It seems generally to have been overlooked, but Birmingham undoubtedly has set a new Southern league record in reverse. . . . The Barons have lost six double-headers in a row. . . . Rudy York is playing first base for the Detroit Tigers with a broken thumb and doing a great job. . . . It's his natural position, Rudy having been all-star first baseman in the Texas league and American Association two years in a row before going up with Detroit. . . . Hank Greenberg, in the worst slump of his career, admits York is a "Fancy Dan" around the initial sack. . . . Out in the Texas league they're saying Hal Epps, the Athens boy, is the finest center fielder in the minors.

. . . Reports have it that Eddie Moore is in line to become the next manager of Richmond, Va., in the Piedmont league, succeeding Lance Richmond. . . . Moore is now piloting Winston-Salem. . . . There seems to be more than just idle talk connected with the report that Cecil Travis, Riverdale boy, will be sold to the White Sox. . . . Jimmy Dykes wants him as a third baseman.

Joe Engel, the old broadcaster, is broadening his field. . . . Engel has asked a construction permit for a station at Chattanooga to operate on 1,370 kilocycles, with power of 250 watts, unlimited time. . . . Is Teddy Yarosz' management trying to pull a run-out on Brown for a rematch here? . . . Latest word is that Joe Gould demands a guarantee of $2,000 plus three round-trip airplane tickets. . . . Wonder if he is interested in the concession rights at the ball park, too? . . . Sam Sobel, hearing of

PREP GRIDDERS ARRIVE FRIDAY FOR STAR GAME

Coaching Clinic To Be Featured by Football Contest Aug. 25.

By ROY WHITE.
Georgia Tech's two football fields will lay idle only one more day, for beginning Friday afternoon, activities will start and continue well into the Christmas holidays.

Outstanding high school football players from all over the state are scheduled to arrive Friday morning and begin practice Friday afternoon under the direction of Coach Bobby Dodd, of the southern squad, and Jack Meagher, of the northern group.

Practice will continue every day through next Thursday with the climax coming with the game Friday night, August 25.

A few days later Georgia Tech's football candidates will go into action on the Rose Bowl field.

The football game will be the outstanding feature of the second annual coaching clinic sponsored by the Georgia Athletic Coaches Association with the co-operation of the Georgia Tech and University of Georgia Athletic Associations.

PHOG ALLEN COMING.
Another big feature of the clinic will be the basketball and track work. Phog Allen, famous University of Kansas coach and winner of 21 out of 27 championship campaigns, will direct the basketball work, assisted by Coach Roy Mundorff, of Tech, and Rex Enright, University of South Carolina, who also will serve as one of the chief scouts during the week's clinic.

George Griffin, Spec Towns and Norris Dean will be in charge of the track work.

Henry Crisp, Alabama, and Wilbur Hutsell, Auburn, will head the training classes.

Fritz Lutz, University of Georgia trainer, will serve as trainer for the all-star and will give practical demonstrations on methods of taping and treating minor injuries.

RAINBRIDGE CENTER.
Bill Shirley, a big center from Bainbridge, Ga., Wednesday accepted the invitation to play with the southern group. He was in the first list of invitations, but awaited word from Clemson's coaches on whether or not to play. That permission was granted Tuesday night and it is likely that the Clemson coaches will be on the sidelines when the game is played.

Shirley is the only player from Bainbridge to be included on the southern team.

Pennies Collected To Pay Heckler's Ten-Dollar Fine

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 16.—(AP)—One thousand Richmond residents were asked to contribute a penny each today so that Cecil Bartlett, 24-year-old baseball fan, might continue to "razz" the Richmond Colts of the Piedmont league.

Bartlett was jailed to serve out a $10 fine on the charge of "being disorderly in Mayo Island ball park," a charge brought by Sergeant J. G. Goldsby who told the court Bartlett "was unduly razzing the ball players and using abusive language in the grandstand."

The Richmond News Leader printed a front page appeal under the headline, "Have you ever razzed the Colts? How about chipping in 1 cent?"

The story said when Bartlett paid his admission to the game last night, he "purchased the right to heckle" and was enjoying the privilege millions of baseball fans find in the "breadth of the land enjoy."

When the $10 to pay the fine is received—in the penny-per-individual contributions—"Cecil Bartlett will be a free man again, free to heckle the Colts again," said the News Leader.

Fine Paid; Now What To Do With Pennies?

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 16.—(AP)—When Cecil Bartlett, 24, went to jail today in lieu of paying a $10 fine for "unduly razzing" the Richmond Colts of the Piedmont league, the Richmond News Leader invited 1,000 readers to contribute a penny apiece so that he would be free to razz again.

The pennies started rolling in before the last edition went to press. Meanwhile, a "friend" paid Bartlett's fine, leaving the paper with a batch of pennies and a problem—what to do with them?

Lee Jensen To Treat Vander Meer's Arm

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Lee Jensen, one-time baseball trainer, said tonight the Cincinnati baseball club had arranged for Johnny Vander Meer to come here for muscular treatment of his pitching arm.

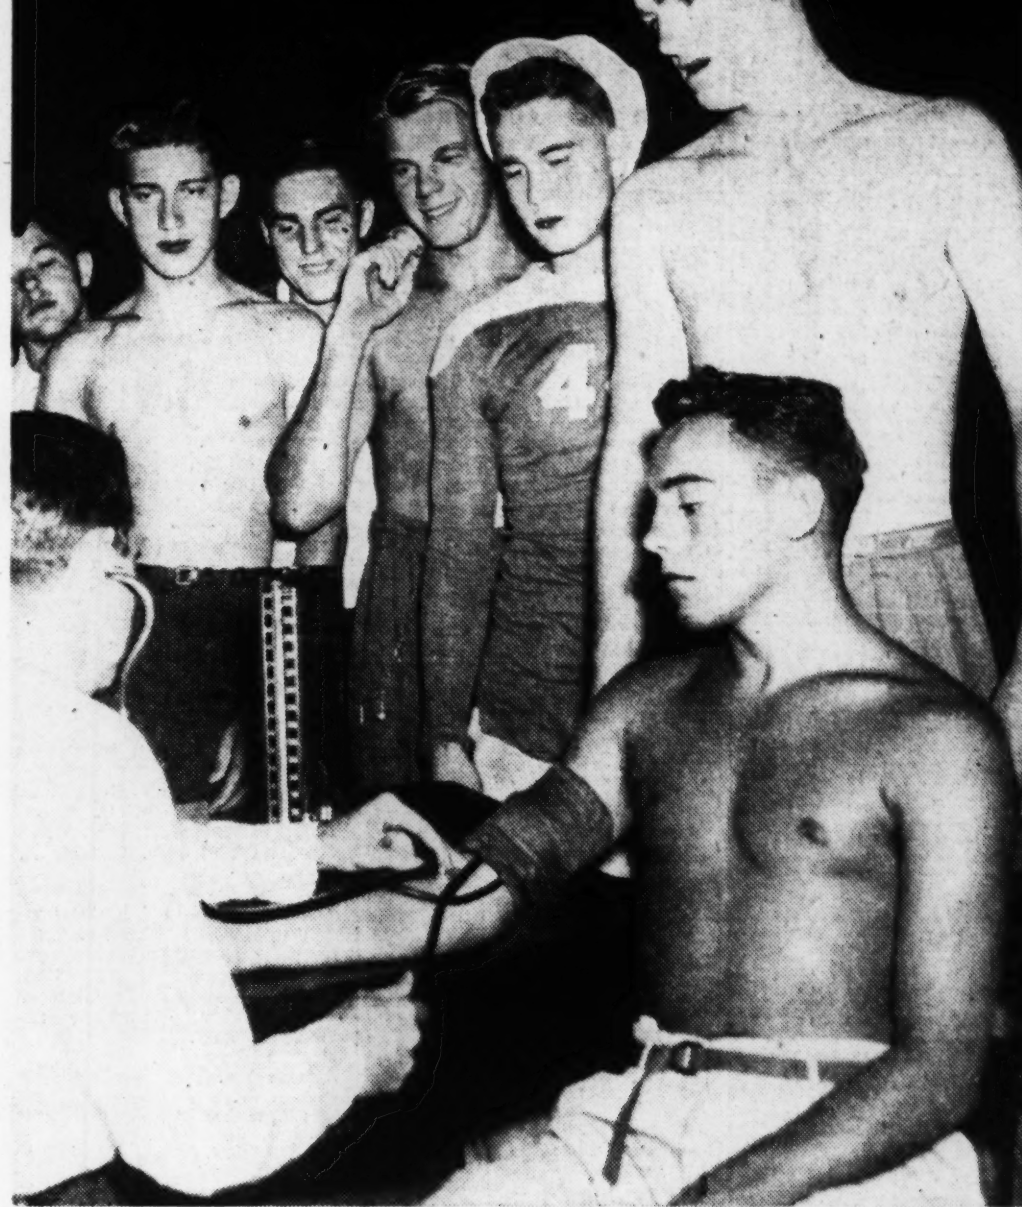

Jensen, who treated Vander Meer prior to his going into the major leagues, said Warren Giles, of the Cincinnati club, made arrangements for Vander Meer to take the treatments within the next five days.

The Cincinnati hurler, winner of two consecutive no-hit, no-run games last season, has turned in five victories this year against eight defeats.

COGBURN, TECH HI BACK, GETS DOCTOR'S OKAY

Rain forced Tech High and Boys' High football candidates inside Wednesday afternoon, so the coaches sent a hurry call to doctors to complete the examination of the large group of players. Every player will have an official okay before participating in any heavy work this year.

Ben Cogburn is getting an okay and upon his good pass throwing ability will depend in a large measure the success of Tech High's team. Left to right waiting their turn are Reed Aikens, Phil Lane, Billy Paschal, Jack Pounds and Frank Heinold. Another group of 80 is waiting for exams.

PHYSICAL EXAMS GIVEN GRIDDERS

60 Smithies, 48 Purples Are Tested; Others Are Slated.

Sixty prospective Tech High school football players underwent physical examinations yesterday to determine whether they are physically fit to lug the pigskin for their alma mater this fall.

The school department requires that football players to obtain a medical certificate before they are allowed to get in a game. Forty-eight hopeful grid men at Boys' High were examined Tuesday.

Those at Commercial High school will be given tests August 25.

City health officials pointed out that the physical examinations are designed to protect both the school and the player. For example, a boy with heart trouble would not be allowed to play.

Four physicians were engaged in giving the examinations, which were described as being more rigid than in previous years. Results of the tests were not announced.

Medwick Is Benched By Wrenched Groin
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A wrenched groin kept Joe Medwick, St. Louis Cubs' left fielder, on the bench here today as his teammates took a double-header from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The heavy hitter took part in batting practice despite his injury, but after he also hurt his back slightly in taking a cut at the ball he retired from the field for the afternoon.

Medwick said he believed he hurt himself going after Billy Herman's single in Monday's game with the Chicago Cubs in St. Louis. He probably will be back in the lineup in the next day or two.

ATLANTA CUTS MEMPHIS LEAD TO 5 1-2 GAMES

Second Game Called Off; Robinson Routed in Fourth Inning.

By JACK TROY.
Frank Brazill did not want to play the Crackers at all last night. He tried to use a wet field as a strong excuse.

One cannot blame Brazill for not wanting his Crackers tangled up with the Crackers. There is some excuse for that.

But, on the other hand, some sort of indictment must be made against the Crackers for dragging out a ball game two hours and 56 minutes so they wouldn't have to go through with a scheduled double-header.

The Crackers walloped the Chicks, 11 to 7, to make it three straight in the series and Herman (Aunt) Besse was the loser. He pitched the last five innings and was good for nine hits and five runs. Who Killed Aunt Besse? Why, the Crackers, of course.

CHICKS GRIPE.
The Chicks started and ended the one game gripping for all they were worth. They argued and stalled to such an extent that one full hour was required to play the first two innings. The game ended at 10:56, and there was no chance to start a second game because of a league rule which does not permit a second game to start after 11 o'clock.

At any rate, the one conclusive victory of the night trimmed the Chicks lead to five games over Nashville and only five and one-half over the third-place Crackers.

The Memphis huddle was at its best in the first inning when a violent argument ensued after Mailho scored on a close play at the plate. Pitcher Jim Henry pushed Umpire Red McCutcheon and was thrown out of the game. Frank Harris had to come in and warm up the mound.

Veverka retired after the Crackers scored three runs in the fourth to tie up the game at six-all. The Chicks threw a five spot at Onnie Robinson in their half—and Aunt Besse started the fifth. He took a sound shellacking.

HARRIS WINNER.
Luman Harris, who relieved Robinson in the fourth, was the winning pitcher. It was No. 15 for Harris. He now has won 15-7 against Besse's 16-7. So maybe Besse isn't the greatest pitcher around after all.

The Chicks suffered a mighty blow in the sixth inning. Buddy Bates led off with a single to right and rounded first. Harris slipped over to first and Mailho fired the ball to him. Bates was tagged out about six feet off the bag. Eckhardt came behind him with a single. The Chicks scored only one run in the sixth inning.

Hitting was fairly even in the game, with the Chicks getting 14 to the Crackers' 15. Erratic Chick play and timely Cracker hitting swung the big margin to the Cracker side. Plus Harris' fine pitching.

Ox Eckhardt's three hits paced the Chicks, while Manager Richards again led the Crackers. He had three hits in four times up.

Brazill acted a bit childish last

MEETINGS TO OPEN AT HOLBROOK CAMP

101st Year of Historic Old Religious Center Finds New-Fangled Lights.

Camp meeting at north Georgia's century-old Holbrook camp ground in Cherokee county will open at 8 o'clock tomorrow night for a 10-day session.

Founded 101 years ago, the camp ground is one of the oldest and most historic in the state. Thirty-nine miles from Atlanta, it long has been a gathering place for the religious families of north Georgia.

For several weeks the "tent holders" have been busy repairing their "tents." One of the latest improvements is the installation of electric lights in the arbor and cottages.

Thirty-one "tents" are situated on the grounds, each one accommodating from 10 to 30 persons. Hundreds of persons who do not camp on the site attend services from day to day.

Holbrook camp ground was founded in 1838 when Jesse Holbrook, Cherokee county farmer-blacksmith, shod a horse for a man who had more land than he had money. The story is that he gave Farmer Holbrook the 40 acres of land that now bears the latter's name. Farmer Holbrook deeded the 40 acres to a "board of trustees and their successors" for use as a camp meeting ground.

Preachers for the meeting this year are the Rev. W. E. Purcell, pastor at Woodbury; the Rev. Bill Boring, pastor of Wesley Memorial Methodist church in Atlanta; the Rev. John B. Ward, pastor in charge, and the Rev. Augustus Earnest, presiding elder of the Marietta district.

PATENT PROTECTION

The Federal Constitution itself provided means by which inventors could be assured of protection for their ideas. And a flood of new inventions has never ceased from the earliest days of the Republic down to now. Not only is it not true that "everything has been invented," but the stream of inventive thought is increasing instead of diminishing. The average inventor, however, is concerned not only with patenting his idea, but with disposing of it to a manufacturer or capitalist at a fair rate of royalty or other return to himself.

Our Washington Service Bureau has ready for you an interesting and authoritative booklet on "Patents and Trade Marks" that tells all the ins and outs not only of securing Patent or Trade Mark protection, but also how to go about seeking a market for an invention and how to secure the maximum protection for an idea while it is in the process of development.
